PEKING ALARMED BY NEW AERIAL VISITOR

SOUTH AFRICAN ELECTION

A TRIUMPH FOR THE COALITION

Capetown, May 18. While many election results have still to come in, an overwhelming majority for the National Government Coalition is already assured. Hitherto 105 Coalitionists have been returned. Only ten members of the opposition have been elected, and these include only three Labour candidates.—Reuter.

Brighter Employment Figures

AN ENCOURAGING OUTLOOK

London, May 18. The Minister for Labour, Sir Henry Deteron, informed the House of Commons to-night that there were 91,000 more persons in employment to-day than a month ago, and 92,000 more than a year ago.

Compared with January, the numbers in employment showed an increase of 219,000. That meant, said the Minister, that in the year under review, when the trade of the whole world had been paralysed by exchange restrictions; when there had been political disturbances and a monetary crisis in nearly every country, the position in Britain was not only incomparably stronger than a year ago, but he thought the outlook was more encouraging than for a very long time.—British Wireless.

R.A.M.C. OFFICER MARRIED

QUIET WEDDING AT PEAK CHURCH

There was a quiet but pretty wedding at the Peak Church yesterday afternoon when Miss Grace Edyth Thacker, of Bombay, was married to Major Alastair Caulfield Jebb, R.A.M.C., the Rev. Lewis Bryan officiating.

The Church was tastefully decorated with pink and white gladioli by Lady Pollock.

The bride, who was given away by Major E. F. W. Grellier, R.A.M.C., looked charming in a white Venetian lace dress over angel's skin satin with a white hat to match. She carried a shower bouquet of pink carnations.

The Matron of Honour was Mrs. E. F. W. Grellier who was dressed in black and orange chiffon with a hat to match. Major W. Adam, R.A.M.C., acted as best man.

Following the wedding ceremony, a reception was held at Gloucester Buildings. The newly-married couple left later for Fanning, the bride's going-away dress being a yellow angel skin ensemble with a brown hat.

LARRY GAINS STILL CHAMPION

BEATS GEORGE COOK ON POINTS

London, May 18. At Olympia to-night, Larry Gains retained the British Empire Heavyweight boxing championship when he met and defeated George Cook, the Australian. Gains, who is a Canadian, out-pointed Cook over 15 rounds of hard and at times, very skillful fighting.—Reuter.

BRITISH MINISTER IN VIENNA

London, May 18. The King has approved the appointment of Sir Walford Selby, Counselor in the Foreign Office, as British Minister in Vienna.—Reuter.

HARBINGER OF ATTACK?

PUBLIC NERVOUSNESS REVIVED

(FROM OUR SPECIAL CORRESPONDENT)

(By Telegraph. Copyright, Telegraphic Messages Ordinance, 1891. Received, May 19, 10.55 a.m.)

PEKING, MAY 19. GREAT EXCITEMENT PREVAILED IN THE CITY THIS MORNING WHEN SHORTLY AFTER NINE-THIRTY ANOTHER JAPANESE AEROPLANE APPEARED, MAKING AN EXTENSIVE SURVEY OF THE CITY AND THE SUBURBS.

The visitor was fired upon from isolated points but did not drop any bombs.

Flying very low, apparently carrying out observations of troops concentrations, the visitor was plainly visible to the thousands who watched the flight.

It is expected that the incident will revive the tension which has relaxed in the few two days with the arrival in Peking of General Huang Fu, coupled with the slowing up of the Japanese advance.

Once again the suspicion has been keenly aroused that the Japanese intend to occupy Peking. The capture of Miyun after severe fighting yesterday brought the Japanese to within forty miles of Peking and the close interest manifest in the military defences of the city are thought to be a preliminary to attack.

PEACE TALK AND THE GUARANTEES

Shanghai, May 19. An official Japanese spokesman has informed the Shanghai Times that though there is a possibility of a truce or an armistice between the Japanese and Chinese military forces in North China, any written armistice will be useless unless the Chinese Government can guarantee that the Chinese armies will not infringe the terms thereof.—Reuter.

"PROVOCATION"

Washington, May 18. The Japanese Ambassador, Mr. Debuschi, told reporters to-day that it is the intention of Japan to withdraw her troops from North China Proper as soon as they get an assurance that they will not be harassed by Chinese raids from south of the Great Wall.

The Japanese have no intention of taking Peking or Tientsin unless there is "provocation" by the Chinese.—Reuter.

CHINESE FALLING BACK.

Peking, May 19. Chinese troops continue to fall back from Kupeikow and along the Peking-Mukden railway.

At Lutai and near Tangshan a wide expanse of country separates the opposing armies and a resumption of serious hostilities may not be expected for some time.

It is understood that Huang Fu

ANGLO-AMERICAN COOPERATION

EXTENSION TO THE FAR EAST?

London, May 18. The question of whether Anglo-American co-operation towards the establishment of security and the improvement of economic conditions in Europe equally extends, or is to be extended, to similar aims in the Far East, was raised in the House of Commons to-night by Erskine-Bolton.

Replying, Mr. Ramsay MacDonald said that until he knew what instructions with regard to security the United States had given to its representatives at Geneva, he could add nothing to what he said in the House of Commons on May 9.

In regard to economic conditions, that would depend upon what was done at the Economic conferences to summon all leading commanders from the fronts to consult them on the situation. He is assuming the dual role of chief military officer and of "unofficial foreign minister."

Huang Fu is reported as having addressed a military meeting in the following cryptic words: "I come as Nanking's representative not to achieve a compromise or to appeal for a cessation of hostilities, but I hope to preserve peace in North China. This can be accomplished through a real spirit of sacrifice in view of the national crisis."

RATIFYING PACT OF NON-AGGRESSION

Franco-Soviet Treaty Fully Approved

Paris, May 18. The Chamber to-day unanimously passed the motion approving of the exchange of articles for the ratification of the Franco-Soviet non-aggression pact signed in Paris on November 29, 1932.

M. Herriot and M. Paul-Boncour, the Prime Minister, spoke on behalf of the motion.

There was an attendance of 520 deputies.—Reuter.

MR. ROOSEVELT'S MESSAGE

CONSULTATION WITH DOMINIONS

London, May 28. The King has caused the text of President Roosevelt's message, to be telegraphed to the Governors-General of all the dominions.

It was cabled simultaneously from Buckingham Palace to Canada, Australia, New Zealand, Newfoundland, South Africa and the Irish Free State.

It is understood that the message was further considered by the Cabinet at Downing Street to-day and the Dominion Governments are being consulted.—British Wireless.

M. Daladier, the French Premier, who may meet Herr Hitler in an effort to find a solution to the disarmament tangle.

ECONOMIC PARLEY

PREPARATIONS IN LONDON

MR. T. V. SOONG ON HIS WAY

London, May 18. Preparations for the assembly of the World Economic Conference are going on apace.

One of the first arrivals will be Mr. T. V. Soong, the Finance Minister of the Nanking Government, who left Washington for New York yesterday, prior to sailing for England.

Mr. Soong was given a cordial send-off by Mr. Cordell Hull, the Secretary of State, who accompanied him to the station.

KING'S BROADCAST.

When the King opens the World Economic Conference on 12th June, his voice will be heard all round the world.

The General Post Office, by wireless telephony and telegraphy, are arranging the biggest linking up that has ever been attempted.

Foreign countries are being invited to take part in the scheme which is being drawn up with the new international telephony headquarters at Faraday House and the great wireless station at Rugby as the focal points.

WORLD-WIDE LINK-UP.

From Faraday House, all the capitals of Europe can be brought in while via Rugby, the King's message will be carried to Sydney, Montreal, New York, Cape Town, Bombay and Cairo.

Administrations "not only throughout the Empire but in most foreign countries will receive the speech and rebroadcast it to their nationals.

COST OF CONFERENCE.

The extra cost of holding the conference in London instead of at Geneva will be borne by the British Government.

Sir John Simon mentioned to-day that for this purpose £18,500 had been included in the Foreign Office vote while the cost of adapting the new Geological Museum Building to accommodate the Conference was estimated at £7,500.

When asked whether the conference would sit continuously until its work was completed, or adjourn if its task was incomplete to allow the delegates to attend the League Assembly in September, the Premier said that was, of course, a matter for the conference itself to decide.—Reuter and British Wireless.

ROYAL REVIEW OF TERRITORIALS

TO BE HELD IN HYDE PARK ON JUNE 24

London, May 18. A Royal review of the territorial forces in the London District will be held in Hyde Park on June 24.—British Wireless.

Another Serious Hitch on Disarmament Issue

BERLIN'S LAST WORD

HOPE AGAIN BEGINS TO FADE OUT

NO NEED FOR A STATEMENT!

Geneva, May 18. The hopes engendered by Herr Hitler's speech that the immediate difficulties in the Disarmament Conference might be overcome, have received a severe blow.

Indications from Berlin are that Germany is not likely to make any concession on the key question unless she is permitted to re-arm.

The first difficulty which has cropped up, before the reumption of the General Commission at Geneva, arises on the question of procedure at the meeting to-morrow, and the problem is causing some embarrassment in disarmament circles.

STANDPOINT CLEAR!

The Germans declare that Herr Hitler has made the German standpoint clear and that it is therefore unnecessary for Herr Noddy, their principal delegate, to speak.

They contend that it is now for the French to put their cards on the table, but it seems most unlikely that the French will be ready to speak so soon and, in any event, there will be no French Minister in Geneva to-morrow.

BRITAIN TO SPEAK.

Consequently, it is expected that in order to avoid adding to existing complications, Captain Anthony Eden, the British delegate will fill the breach and Mr. Arthur Henderson, the chairman of the Conference is also likely to speak.

Germany's mood may be judged from a message from Berlin stating the German view that the resumption of the disarmament negotiations will very quickly show that France has no intention of interpreting Germany's equality claim as Hitler does, namely, full quantitative and qualitative equality of arms.

If so, says the Berlin report, the difficulties of the Geneva Conference appear insurmountable for Germany has stated her last word in the matter and no further concessions are to be expected from her.—Reuter.

RECORD BREAKERS HONOURED

LONG DISTANCE FLIGHT RECALLED

London, May 18. Squadron Leader Gayford and Flight Lieutenant Nicholls were entertained to-day by the Royal Aeronautical Society, the Royal Aero Club, the Society of British Aircraft Constructors, and the Air League of the British Empire in honour of their world record long range flight from Cranwell to Walvis Bay.—British Wireless.

BRITISH STOCKS DOWN

IRREGULAR TONE OF MARKET

London, May 18. The Stock markets closed with some irregularity. British funds finishing under the best with war loan 3½ per cent. at 99½. German bonds, after an earlier recovery, also fell back.—British Wireless.

DALADIER-HITLER MEETING

URGED BY MR. DAVIS IN PARIS

Paris, May 18. It is understood that Mr. Norman Davis, in view of the new difficulties which have arisen regarding procedure, has suggested a meeting between M. Daladier, the French Premier, and Herr Hitler at Geneva as the only way out of the threatened Franco-German impasse.

It is believed that M. Daladier is favourable.—Reuter.

London Passenger Traffic Pool

LORD ASHFIELD AS CONTROLLER

London, May 18.

It was to-night announced in the Commons that Lord Ashfield the Chairman of the London Traffic Combine, will be appointed first Chairman of the London Passenger Transport Board.

The appointment is for seven years. Mr. Frank Pick, present managing Director of the Underground Group, will be a whole time member for seven years. Mr. John Clift, at present Assistant General Secretary of the Transport and General Workers' Union, and Colonel Patrick Ashley-Cooper, Director of the Bank of England and of the Hudson Bay Company, part time members for five years.

Sir John Gilbert, Alderman of the London County Council, Sir Edward Holland, Alderman of the Surrey County Council and Sir Henry Maybury, the Chairman of the London Home Counties Traffic Committee are to be part time members for three years.

The new pooling scheme includes every form of passenger transport within an area of about 25 miles from Charing Cross and represents approximately £120 millions of invested capital.—British Wireless.

MUSCLE SHOALS SCHEME

PRESIDENT RATIFIES MEASURE

(Special to "Telegraph")

Washington, May 18. President Roosevelt has signed the "Muscle Shoals Tennessee Valley" Bill.

It provides for Government co-operation in the Muscle Shoals hydro-electric nitrate plant as part of a big scheme for the development of the Tennessee Valley.

An earlier Bill was vetoed by President Hoover.—Reuter.

Chung King, an apprentice, was injured yesterday in a fall from scaffolding outside the Hongkong Electric Co.'s premises in Des Voeux Road. He was sent to Hospital.

Police are looking for an unknown driver, who drove off after his car had knocked down a Chinese pedestrian in Connaught Road after 11 o'clock last night. The victim was found by Traffic Sgt. MacInnes and pit.

GREATER KOWLOON TONG

DEVELOPMENT SCHEME ON EAST SIDE

BIG EXPANSION PROJECTED

Of the plethora of Garden cities contemplated or already embarked upon in the Colony, that which is likely to dwarf all others is the Kowloon Tsai development scheme, work on which commenced some three months ago.

The scheme comes as a natural expansion of Kowloon Tong, which hereabouts appears to have no limits except the natural ones offered by the barrier of the Kowloon range of hills separating it from Shatin. Towards the north-east, however, the scheme can, with the least resistance, be continued to Kowloon City, and this is the ultimate object of the proposals when they reach their fullest scope.

Meanwhile, the first section of something like 45 acres of hilly ground, is being prepared, and when completed will form a substantial addition to Kowloon Tong garden city, at present limited by the boundary of Waterloo Road.

MODEL LAY-OUT.

The lay-out of the new area will conform to the present Kowloon Tong settlement, and it is the intention of the Government to put the sites up for auction in the usual way with conditions preserving the garden city character of the district.

The ambitious character of the scheme is fully appreciated, and it is recalled that when first mooted, and provision for it accordingly made in the Estimates for Public Works Extraordinary, the intention was to carry out the work in such a manner that it could be abandoned at any time if desirable.

A bolder outlook appears to have since set in, and $100,000, the first portion of a sum of $400,000 earmarked for the purpose, is to be spent this year in levelling work.

NEW ROAD TO KOWLOON CITY.

Roughly, the project in its widest scope, embraces the whole area, now alternating between hills and low-lying ground, behind Prince Edward Road.

On the north side it extends as far back as the barrier of the Kowloon range of hills will permit. A road which will be the continuation of Cornwall Road, the present northern boundary of Kowloon Tong garden city, will link the new settlement up with Kowloon City by a route running past the Hau Wong Temple.

The first section of this big scheme extends along the eastern boundary of Waterloo Road, parallel with Kowloon Tong, for a distance of approximately 4,000 feet. The rectangular block enclosed by it is 740 feet at its widest part, and is mostly hilly. The task of levelling or partly levelling something like five hills, filling up the intervening depressions with the material, and preparation of the site to a certain required gradient, will take some considerable time.

GOOD PROGRESS.

The contractors have been given three years, and are required to remove and dump something like 1,000 cubic yards of material per day, but they told a Telegraph representative that at the present rate of progress they expect to finish their job much earlier.

When the first section in the scheme has been completed, with all drainage requirements, an area a trifle smaller than the present Kowloon Tong, will be available for building purposes.

ROLL THOSE BULGES OFF YOUR HIPS

Shoulders flat, ankles crossed, hips rolled to side.

By Jac Auer

Slim hips are the dream of every woman over 30.

This year, particularly, tailored clothes call for slenderness through the hips. Get to work reducing! There's no other way to get slim.

First, are you attacking to fruit juices and beverage for breakfast? Have you eliminated butter, cream, breads, pastries and candy? Are you getting your full quota of roughage—salads, green vegetables, fresh fruit? If you are, you should already notice that your weight is beginning to lose ground. That alone will give you strength to redouble your efforts to reduce.

I have worked out a hip roll that is excellent for the abdomen as well and for many shoulder muscles that need exercising.

Lie flat on the floor. Not the bed, because the hard surface of the floor is needed to get full benefit of this roll. Throw your arms carelessly and comfortably above your head. Cross your ankles and pull your knees up to right side.

Now, keeping your arms flat on the floor, roll your crossed legs from the waist down, over toward the right side, then low circle and over to the left. The objective is to get stretch enough to touch the floor, almost, with your heels, with your shoulders and chest lying flat on the floor.

Do the exercise slowly. It is the hips rolling against the floor that takes off the fat. The exercise also brings all your thigh muscles into play and your abdominal muscles as well. It is a wonderful exercise for disciplining muscles that do not get enough exercise.

Roll to one side and then the other 10 times the first day. Increase daily until you can do 25 rolls without tiring.

YOUR CHILDREN.

When Sister Wants
Brother's Toys—
Be Diplomatic.

By Olive Roberts Barton

"What on earth shall I do about Tommy and Kitty?" wails their mother.

"Tommy is five and Kitty is not quite three. She runs off with his toys and he chases her. She hugs his engine or his horse tight and refuses to let him touch it. Then he pommels her. She screams and runs to me. I spend all my precious hours trying to make peace. What am I to do?"

Well—I could tell her to try to reason with Tommy, show him he must play the magnanimous part of big brother and all that. But I won't. It leads to trouble. The seeds of despotism, the younger playing baby everlastingly and expecting sacrifice from those older than herself, begin right here.

Cautious With Correction!

I could also tell her to let the children play apart. But again this is not practical, and not very valuable, either. Children should learn to play together. They establish healthy reactions from contact with each other. They learn the sporting game of live and let alone. All sorts of things.

One could suggest that she pursue the baby, retrieve the toy and perhaps add a smacking. Yet Daddy Kit is at the age when "will" set itself up deliberately against other will, not from naughtiness but experiment.

All will develops by such methods, otherwise there would be none at all. It begins to want its own way very early. We can't smack a natural phenomenon. If we do, the mind doubles back on itself too often, twists, and later on dire results such as secrecy, cunning, and even dishonesty often occur.

Children Strong-Willed

Now let us see why the baby ran off with Tommy's engine. Because Tommy wanted it and the baby knew it. The toy had lain neglected in the playroom all morning until Tommy started to play with it. Then and then only did Kitty want it, too.

Part of this was "imitative." Part of it "will." Will taking the engine away help? Just for the minute, because the same urge still exists in the small breast. And in five minutes the trouble will happen all over again about something else.

If we substitute her own toys, she is not interested. At least not always. She wants what Tommy has and nothing else. It certainly is a hard life for Thomas. In a year or so she will be over it, when initiative takes the place of imitation and when will becomes subject to reason.

Try Similar Toys

In the meantime I would not buy her dolls or blocks or picture books or things altogether different from Tommy's toys. I would duplicate Tommy's playthings as far as possible for a while. It is not possible to duplicate everything, of course, but let him be a bit generous. Get him to be your "aide." Explain to him it won't always be so. On the other hand don't let the baby have it all her way, either. Let her know that when you say "no" it is to be "no."

When there are three children that is something else. Not all these puzzles can be worked out. There are times when all children have a right to play alone—not selfishly but peacefully. I don't believe in giving the youngest tyrant all the breaks.

• Vegetables—To Match!

There are certain vegetable rules to follow when serving different kinds of meat. Pears with lamb; potatoes with beef; string beans with pork. Of course, you may serve other vegetables too but these are considered best both by dietitians and etiquette experts.

FASHION NOTES.

How to Transform An Old Evening Frock.

Velvet, satin, and tulle are all in vogue, and these are materials which are kind to amateur dress-makers.

Cut the back of your all-too-familiar evening gown into a deep V decolletage. Then, add two frills to each shoulder to pretend that they are sleeves. Put a velvet bow at the point of the V, and there you are, right to the minute again!

If you wish, you can make a cape of velvet too. It can cross over at the front, or be scarflike, and thrown over your shoulder. Perhaps the smartest choice of material would be one of the new, shiny, waxed satins.

Another good idea, and fashion's latest whim, is to add a sash and long ends to evening frocks. These ends can reach right down to the hem of your dress, and can either match or contrast with it.

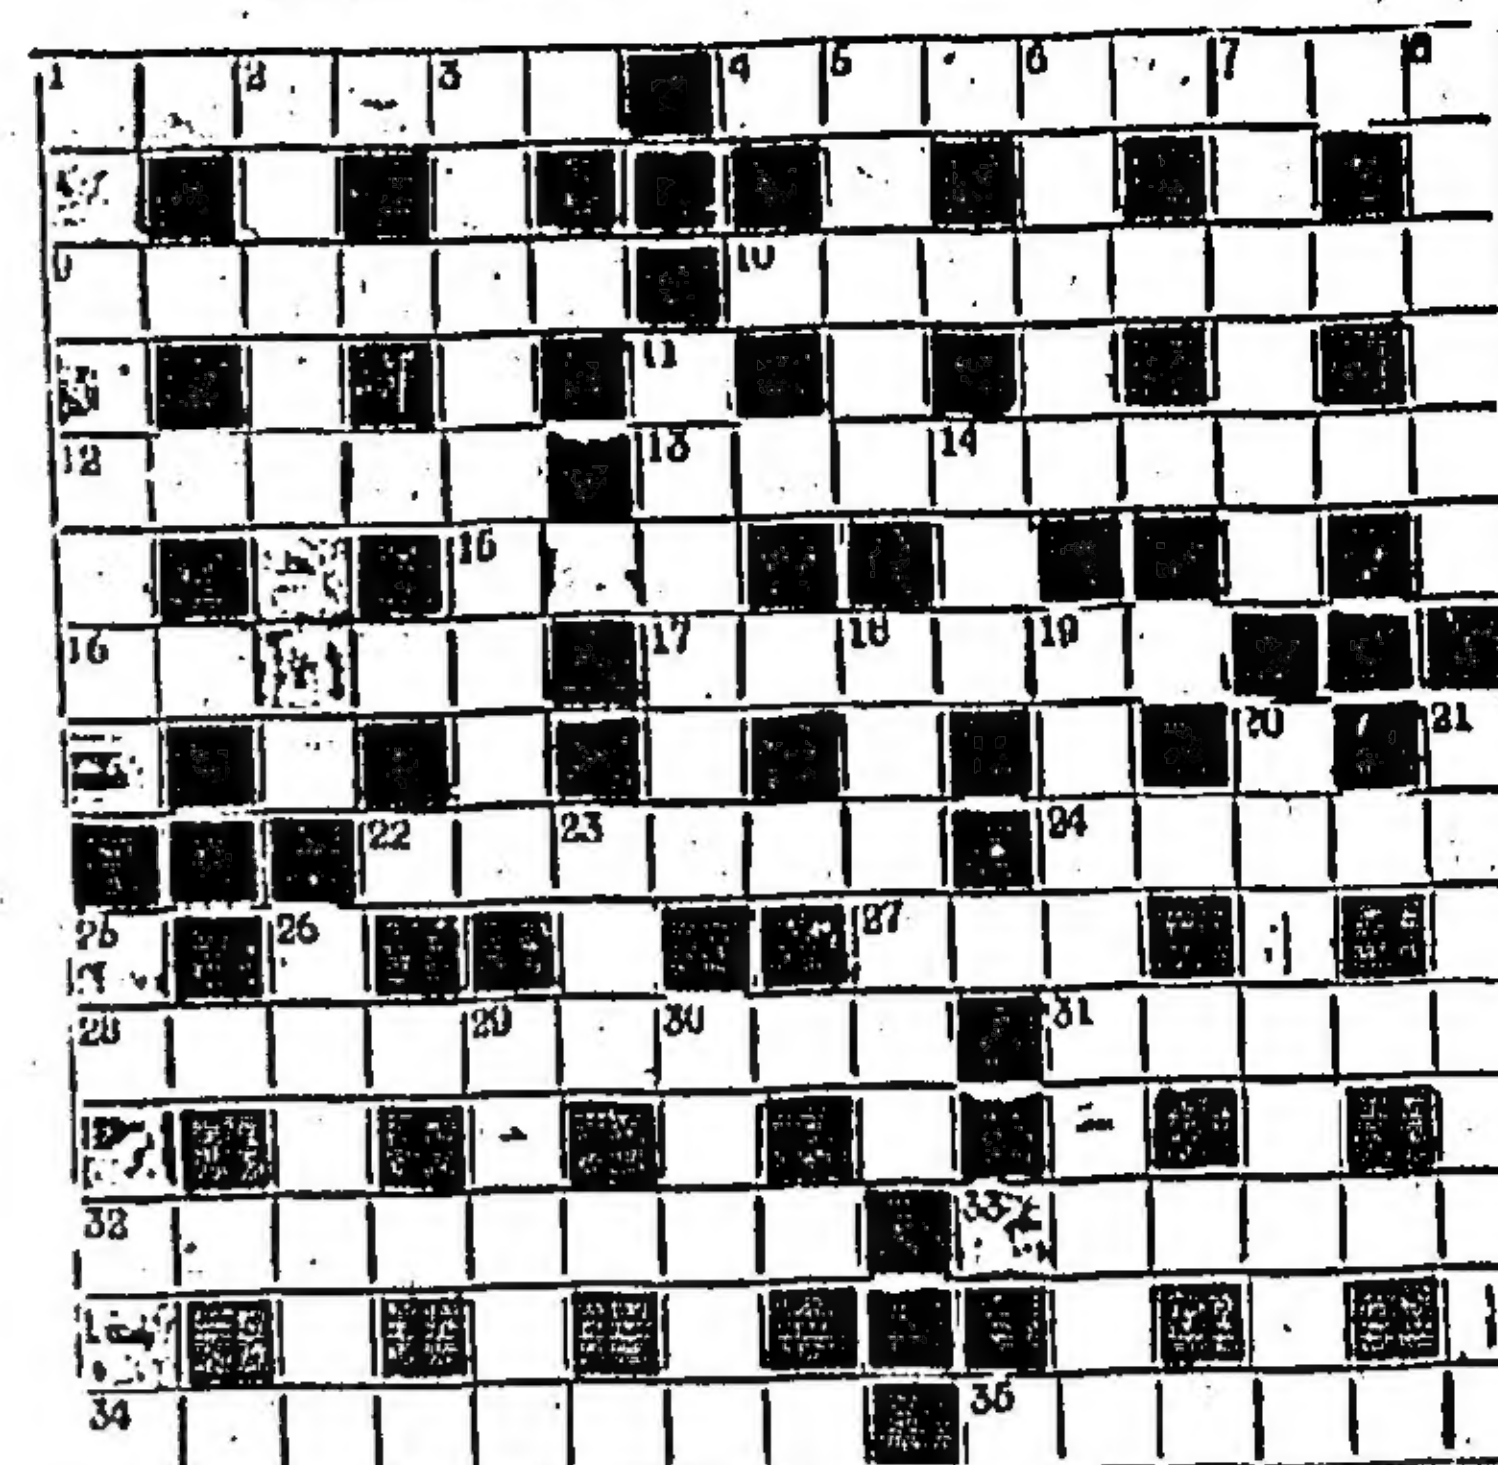

Velvet or satin would be equally smart. You could have several slashes of this kind and revel in changes of colour scheme at very little cost.

Two frilly sleeves of pleated georgette or stiffened chiffon reaching to the elbow, half-a-cape each, as it were, would do wonders for an old gown.

Little coats of tulle or net with short, very frilly sleeves are a new fancy. You can please yourself whether you wear a dark one on a light frock or a light one on a dark frock. Fashion permits either, so wear whichever suits you best.

If you have a white dress of which you have become tired, have it dyed to the new pale grey.

WHAT IS KLIM?

KLIM is in no sense a proprietary or prepared food, but is merely a convenient form of the highest grade of pure whole milk. It is simply whole milk from which practically all of the water has been removed by a careful heating process.

Advantages of Klim.

The advantages of KLIM are its CLEANLINESS and PURITY, with a bacteria content averaging less than 3,000 per c.c.; its UNIFORMITY, due to the fact that the whole milk from which it is prepared comes from large herds; its superior DIGESTIBILITY, due to a fine curd formation; its high NUTRITIONAL VALUES, equivalent to those of the best grade of pure pasteurized whole milk; and its UNIQUE KEEPING QUALITIES.

NO REFRIGERATION IS NECESSARY FOR KLIM.

Klim in the un-opened tin will keep good for years. The special vacuum processed tin guards the purity and freshness of Klim. An opened can of Klim will keep in condition for weeks. You do not have to put it in the ice box or refrigerator.

Write or call for a trial tin, from the local agents.

LOVE or MONEY?

BY H. W. CORLEY

CHAPTER XXXIII

There was only a week in which to prepare for the journey. It was a busy seven days. Lottie gave notice to her employer that she was leaving and did it in such a way that Henri, bursting into aggrieved tears, demanded that she pack up her belongings and go immediately!

Lottie did that. She had no sooner reached her apartment than the telephone rang.

"I'm not at home," she told Sallie. "If it's for me, it's Henri. He probably wants to ask me to come back."

The voice at the other end of the wire was Henri's.

"But Miss Carr can never be reached at home in the day time," Sallie explained deftly. "Miss Carr is employed."

There was a galle sputter at the other end of the connexion. Sallie's manner was composed as she answered. "Oh, you are Miss Carr's employer? She did not come in today?" There was a pause and then Sallie said, "Oh, I see!"

With one hand over the transmitter she turned, smiling. "It's Henri all right. He wants to hire you back."

"Tell him I haven't come in yet," Lottie instructed. "Say you'll deliver the message when you see me."

Obligingly Sallie complied. She put down the telephone saying, "So you're really going to South America, are you?"

Lottie sensed worry in Sallie's tone and hastily explained Mona's plan in regard to the apartment. "I'll pay half the rent until the lease expires anyhow. That'll be next October. I want a home to come back to."

"Maybe I can get another girl to come in while you are gone and have you that expense."

Lottie shook her head. "It's all right. Get another girl to come in if you like, but get her out again when I come back, won't you? Meanwhile I'll swing my share of the rent. I can afford it," she added, "and it's nice to have a place to come back to."

The days flew by. Besieged at the telephone by a repentant Henri who had not taken her announcement of a new job and departure from town seriously, Lottie finally capitulated to the extent of working two afternoons.

The little apartment was piled with luggage. A wardrobe trunk stood open, filled with a careful selection of clothes. Sallie brought a nurse who had lived in the tropics who offered much advice.

"Take cotton clothing," she insisted. "Even cotton underwear. It's much cooler. Be sure all your hose are light coloured. Mosquitoes feast on darker shades."

She urged Lottie to take plenty of cotton frocks and leather instead of rubber soled sports shoes. Laundry was cheap but not rapid. The girls would need plenty of clothes.

They ordered plenty.

Lottie, whirling back and forth between her own apartment and Mona's home, arrived with this bit of information, that "tricky little model just Mona's size" (this hint as to sensibility).

"I hear the Miranda is a regular tub," she insisted, "and that means mal de mer with a vengeance."

Mona was equally busy. There were papers to sign, the house to close, servants to discharge temporarily and pay for the interval. Mona was too recently removed from the terrors of a lost job to do anything except what she considered the right thing by her employees.

The girls bought cameras, dark glasses, magazines (the Miranda carried no supply), fancy little deck bags to hold glasses, books and handkerchiefs.

A supply of remedy for seasickness. Mrs. Callahan had told her about it.

"How does your family feel about the trip?" Lottie asked Mona.

"Great. I'll see Bud, you know."

They packed articles of lingerie by the dozen, for the trip was a long one.

"The booklet says that we can get laundry done at several ports of call while we are waiting," objected Mona. "Do we need all these things in our cabin?"

"Laundresses come down to the boat," Sallie informed her amusedly. "Very dressy laundresses, wearing the duds other travellers were silly enough to entrust to them on earlier voyages!"

"They'll have to leave a deposit, then," Lottie declared.

Raincoats and umbrellas for the rainy season. Chiffons for evening. Very little silk. And countless hose!

"It seems too bad to leave all those knockout clothes here," Lottie murmured, referring to her beloved evening dresses. "But it would be worse to take them and have them ruined."

Mona had met with little difficulty in booking passage. An official from the Virgin Islands had cancelled a suite. It was, obviously, the best to be had on the Miranda and Mona promptly engaged it.

There were telephone calls, goodbyes, last minute purchases. Sallie rushed to buy a six-months' stock of cosmetics and packed them compactly and cleverly in single small overnight bag.

"What are you going to do with the Empress?" Lottie asked. She had hoped that a quixotic urge would insist that Mona present it to Steve.

"Leave it with Withington's, of course," Mona had decided against taking any jewels except her wedding ring. They would only prove a burden.

Monday came and went. Tuesday, Wednesday. They were to sail Wednesday afternoon at four.

The baggage had gone aboard the day before. Only the last few things remained to be done. A single suitcase for last minute packing lay open on the chaise longue.

For the most part Mona had limited her wardrobe to black and white or simply white. Black was a difficult colour to wear in the heat. It was warm and out of keeping with tropical surroundings.

"Morning isn't used as much as it has been," she told Lottie. "And, even though I am looking for some way to get around the will, I loved my husband. In a way, I mean. In every way except the way I love Barry. That last day John promised to do for Barry what I am trying to find a way to do now."

"Wait until we see Steve," Lottie advised. "Steve is the boy who will show us how."

"Maybe. If he and Barry aren't furious with us for showing up."

"That's a thought. That is a thought, Mona!" Lottie paused in the occupation of wrapping some new perfume in a cocoon of silk hose. Then she shook her head. "They can't stay mad long," she decided. "Didn't they both say there were hardly any attractive women down there?"

"I am not going with the idea of attempting to bowl anyone over," Mona remarked, repeating a phrase that was a favourite of Lottie's. "You don't have to attempt to do that, darling," Lottie said. "You do it no matter what your intentions are."

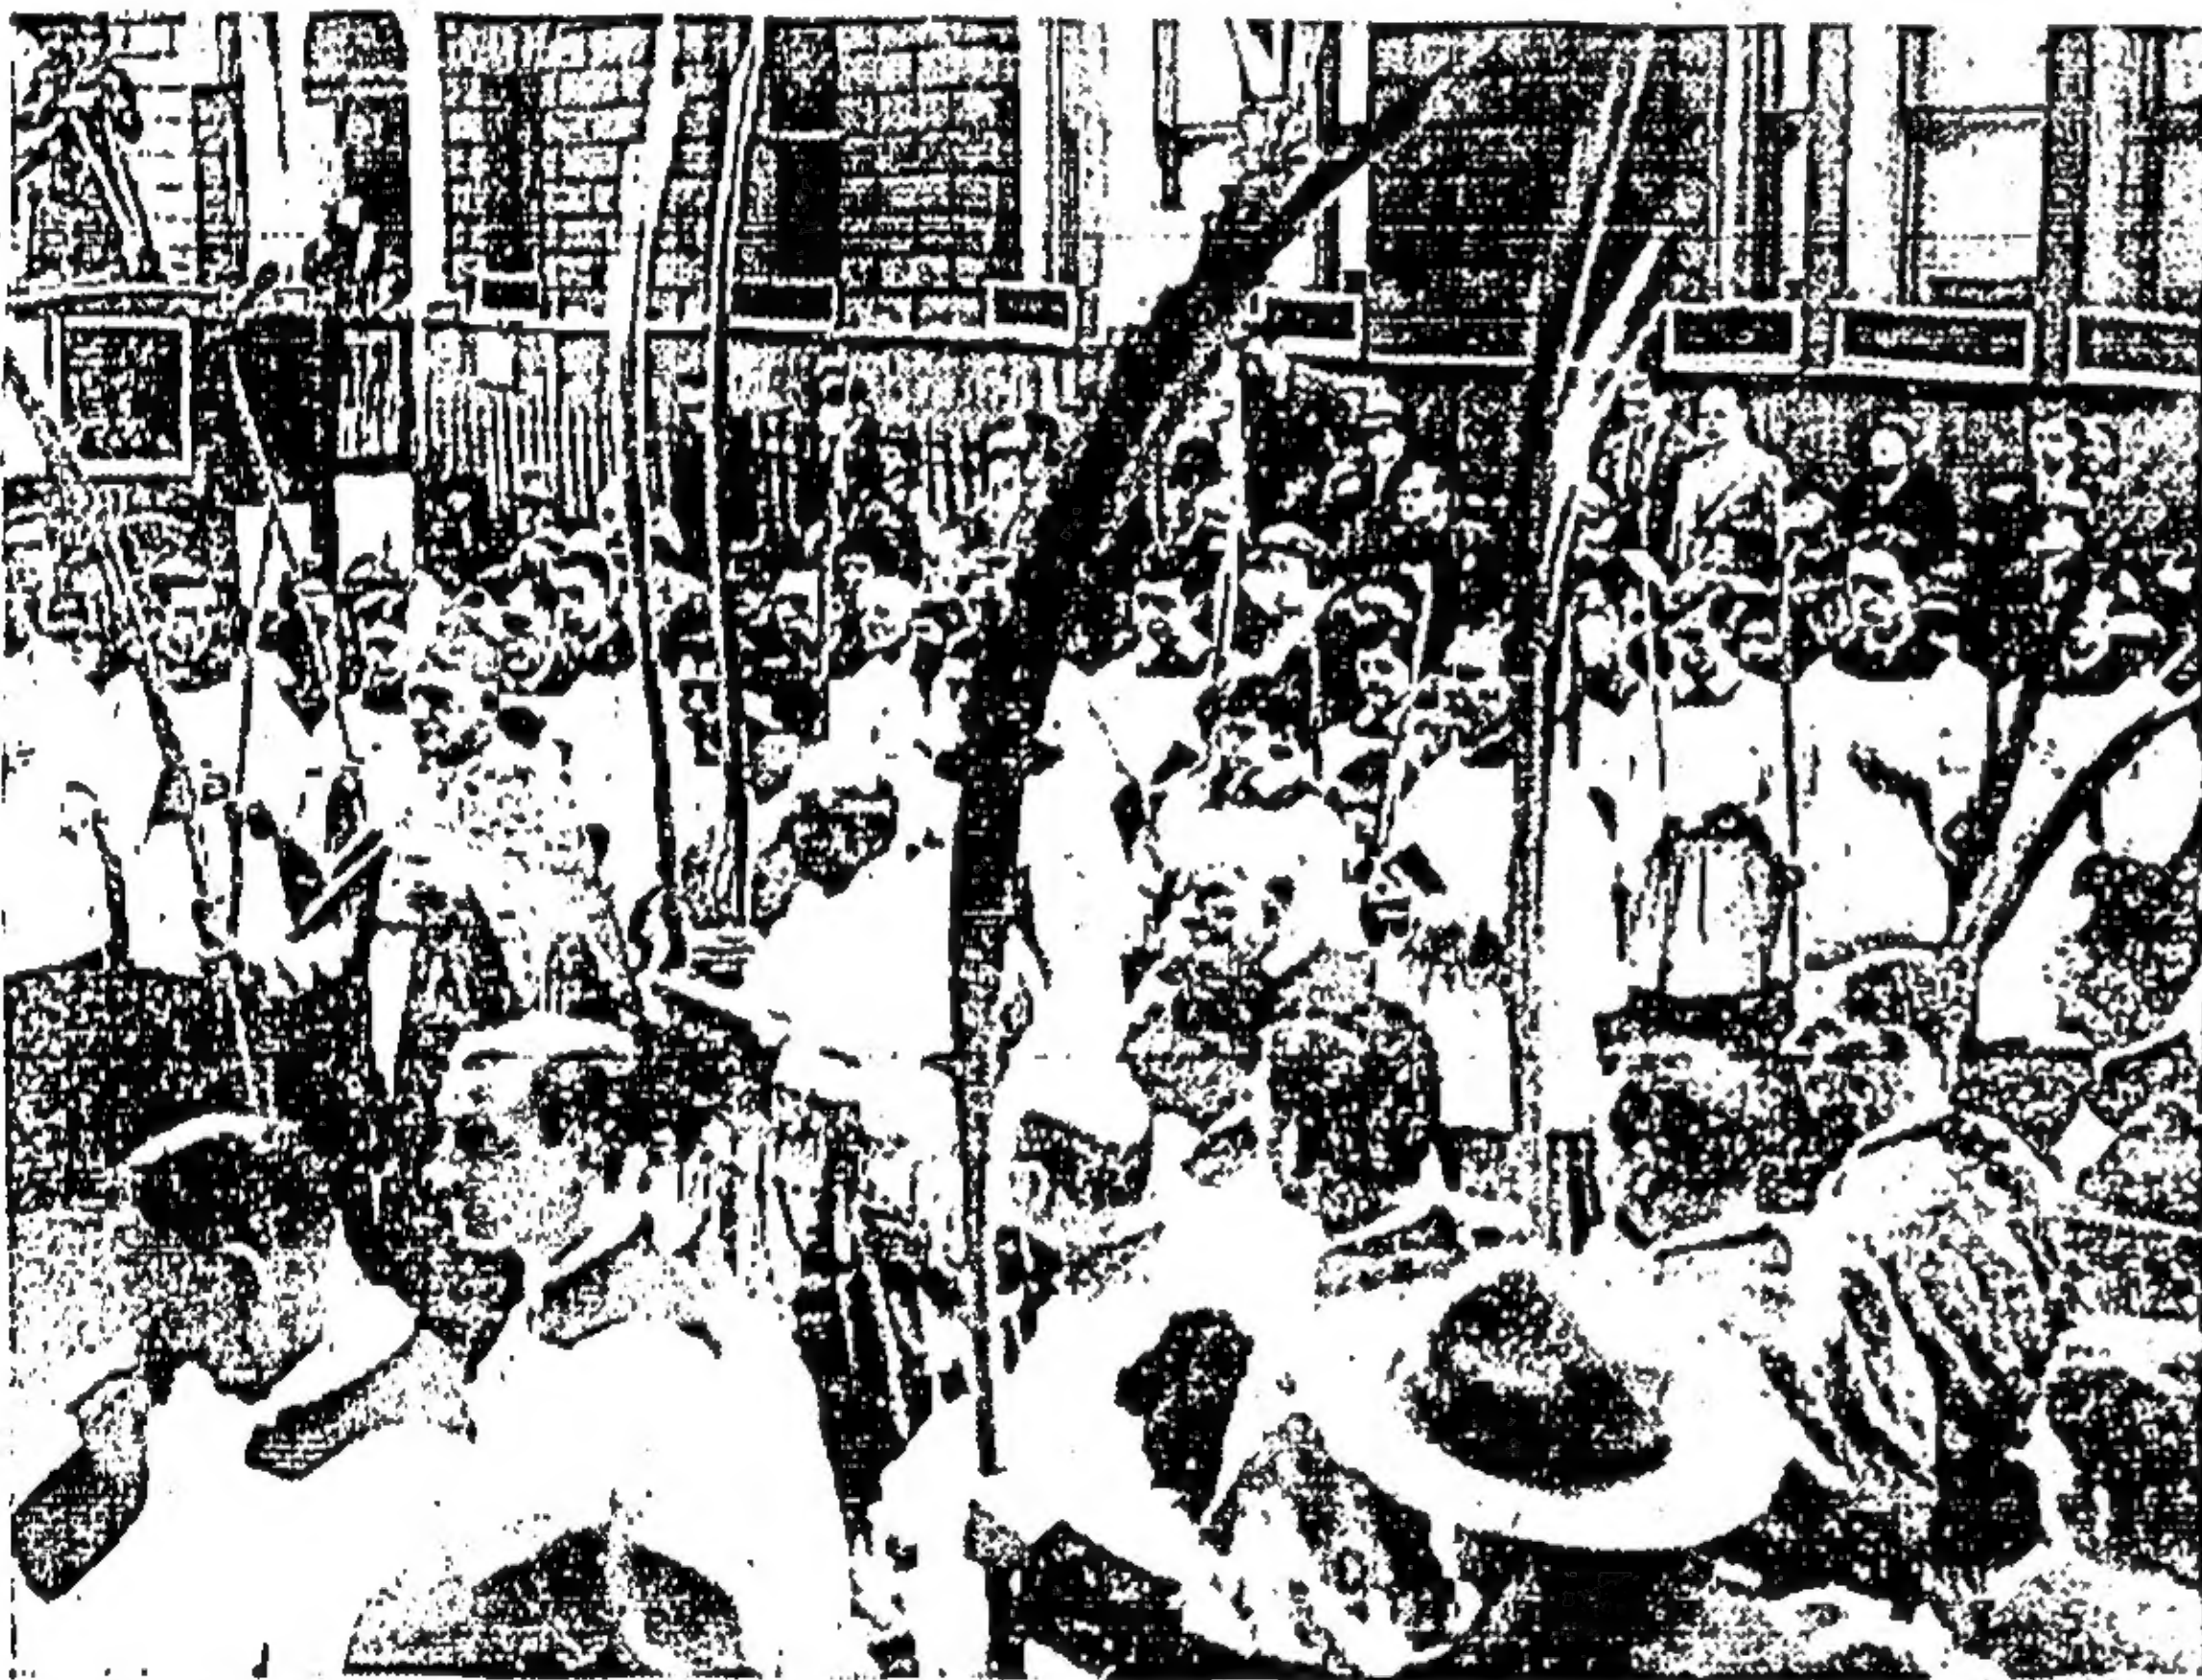

The bags were packed and Lottie and Mona were arrayed in dark winter dresses to be shed the second day out. Two fur coats lay waiting to be worn to the boat and then brought back by Sallie and placed in storage.

"Make your first costume do for the first two days," Sallie told them. "Nobody dresses on boats like the Miranda. The third day probably will be warm enough to start emulating summer."

Luncheon was served in Mona's sitting room. Later the car brought over the entire Moran family. They were going to the boat.

Mona and Lottie, hatted and coated, flew about checking everything. A taxi was called for the remaining baggage and Sallie, as the least interested member of the party about to see the girls off, consented to ride with the bags. Lottie and Mona rode in the car with the Morans.

Servants would close the house and lock it within an hour. As the car whirled through the park Mona felt that a new era in her life was beginning. And so it proved. (To be Continued.)

CINEMA "SHOTS" AND "SEQUENCES"

WHAT IS REALLY WRONG
WITH THE CINEMASOME COMMENTS ON A LOCAL
CRITIC'S OBSERVATIONS

WHERE CLARA BOW'S FILM FAILS

TUMULTUOUS RECEPTION FOR
WHEELER AND WOOLSEY

By "Celluloid"

IF any credence is to be placed on the programme version of the story of Call Her Savage, it would appear that this is another film where alternative endings were shot and that local patrons saw the one other than that described in the programme. The idea of alternative endings to a film is not new. They were made in All Quiet on the Western Front, although in that case Cecil de Mille's version was finally selected. Milestone, the director made one which showed newspaper presses rushing out special editions with the glaring headlines "All Quiet on the Western Front". The one actually adopted was de Mille's—a superimposition of the central figures of the picture walking over the war grave yards of Flanders and looking back wistfully over their shoulders as they trudged along the scarred countryside.

JUDGED on what the programme told us I feel sure that the King's Theatre made a very wise choice in the case of Call Her Savage. There is quite sufficient blah-blah melo-drama in the picture as presented without adding to it. The picture is a typical Clara Bow effort. It is also typical of Hollywood in its most painfully sexual colour. The picture meets the case and supplies several answers to a correspondent's trenchant letter in a contemporary this week in connexion with films. But of that, more anon. The great failing of Call Her Savage is its restricted appeal. Beyond Clara Bow's personal film fans, it is doubtful if many people could derive a great deal of pleasure or entertainment from it. The picture is a concentrated effort on the part of producer, director, photographer and all the other technicians to exploit Clara Bow to her fullest. The rest of the cast are made merely incidental, with the result that all of the well known ability of such players as William Robertson, Estelle Taylor and Gilbert Roland is enveloped in a rather futile endeavour on the part of Clara Bow and her directors to picture Dynamite.

choice in the case of Call Her Savage. There is quite sufficient blah-blah melo-drama in the picture as presented without adding to it. The picture is a typical Clara Bow effort. It is also typical of Hollywood in its most painfully sexual colour. The picture meets the case and supplies several answers to a correspondent's trenchant letter in a contemporary this week in connexion with films. But of that, more anon. The great failing of Call Her Savage is its restricted appeal. Beyond Clara Bow's personal film fans, it is doubtful if many people could derive a great deal of pleasure or entertainment from it. The picture is a concentrated effort on the part of producer, director, photographer and all the other technicians to exploit Clara Bow to her fullest. The rest of the cast are made merely incidental, with the result that all of the well known ability of such players as William Robertson, Estelle Taylor and Gilbert Roland is enveloped in a rather futile endeavour on the part of Clara Bow and her directors to picture Dynamite.

THERE is a mother's-love-for-her-baby scene and a death bed scene which succeed in some measure in revealing the complex nature of the girl Clara Bow character, but they are painful and appealed to means being superfluous. Sex is predominant as a theme, which is another illustration of how Hollywood misinterprets. The underlying motif behind the book was a psychological study of a girl who inherits half cast blood through a love affair of her mother. The picture merely sets out to portray the girl's reactions to her associations with men.

THE thoughtful analysis of the film industry to-day, its shortcomings, and trend in the future which, under the pseudonym of "Observer", was published in a contemporary this week encourages one to believe that Hongkong is not averse to taking some sort of intelligent study of the cinema. One can sympathise with the writer's search for a solution to a very obvious problem. "Observer's" chief points are (1) the cinema industry has reached perfection; (2) the films have exploited every available theme and are barren in ideas; (3) exploitation of the "star" system is a fallacy; (4) the introduction of the talking machine has restricted the appeal of the film where alternative endings were shot and that local patrons saw the one other than that described in the programme. The idea of alternative endings to a film is not new. They were made in All Quiet on the Western Front, although in that case Cecil de Mille's version was finally selected. Milestone, the director made one which showed newspaper presses rushing out special editions with the glaring headlines "All Quiet on the Western Front". The one actually adopted was de Mille's—a superimposition of the central figures of the picture walking over the war grave yards of Flanders and looking back wistfully over their shoulders as they trudged along the scarred countryside.

"Observer" in his first point intends to convey that the cinema has reached perfection so far as its mechanics and plant is concerned, the majority will be willing to agree with him. But if he is referring to the art of cinema, consequent upon which is its value as an entertainment, I think the opposite is the case. And one of the chief reasons for this is found in "Observer's" fourth point, the retarding influence of the talking machine. It is undeniable that the misuse of sound through the speaking voice has both reduced the appeal of the film as well as prevented the development of the artistic side of the industry. As Paul Rotha rightly points out in his appeal to the American, Englishman, Frenchman, Japanese, Chinese, Indian and Eskimo, and it is simply because he has not allowed a language to invade his pictures. Everybody can interpret Chaplin whereas as soon as dialogue is introduced the interest in the picture is confined to the people who can understand the language.

BUT Chaplin, in his City Lights proved very clearly that sound can be applied to the cinema to add effect and entertainment. Disney has demonstrated the same point. The talking machine may yet become a thing of the past in the cinema world, but sound apparatus will remain, and when once the industry is free from the shackles of speech, it will turn its thoughts more seriously to sound images. The synchronisation of sound effect with action, together with proper manipulation of the camera will go a long way towards reaching nearer the heart of true cinema. Before this can be accomplished, however, other aspects of film production will have to be revised.

THE commentator's observations regarding themes and the way in which the films have run them to seed contain more than a grain of truth. But this, in regard to Hollywood productions bears some relation to his further point concerning lack of historical background from which America suffers. Hollywood productions carry so much "pro-need for attention to the latter part of modern America, that of this slogan, and another feature they have little time for the more of the industry which calls for re-historic features of the country. vision is in the mass production of Unfortunally the same stone can films. This "Observer" appears to be cast at the English studios, have in mind when he refers to Judged from the British output "mechanical films". The average seen in Hongkong to date, as well producer and director turn out as reading about the rest, it is easy pictures according to pattern, to see that England's great Flamingo that the box office appeal of events of past and present have still more on the market. It is only to find expression through the silver when the more independently minded. The educational aspect of directors of the Lubitsch, Ma-neglected in America, England and Eisenstein and Pudowsky type get France, and to a lesser extent, to work that the world is given a Germany. Russia is the only coun-real insight to the wonderful pa-try as yet to exploit the educational abilities of the film as an enter-tainment, an education, and a work of art.

AS to "Observer's" assessment of present day screen actors, he will doubtless find many to dis-

SILVER'S FUTURE

Nothing has attracted more attention in the results of the economic discussions at Washington than the new-found prominence of place provided for the silver question. Scarcely a day goes by without some one being taught us to be, there is no doubt that America's lead has changed the entire outlook and that, in consequence, Hongkong's interest in the World Economic Conference has become specific. There is every chance of action to rehabilitate silver. Already certain steps have been taken, the most important being, perhaps, the agreement between the three primary producers, the United States, Canada and Mexico. This agreement covers both remonetisation and some form of bimetalism and it is significant of the change of feeling that four hours sufficed to produce it. It is also clear that the British experts have abandoned their air of indifference to the fate of silver. Nevertheless, bimetalism will not be adopted without encountering strong opposition. The opponents of artificial stimulation of silver values argue that it is fallacious to imagine that there is any short cut to permanent prosperity by monetary manipulation. But these must form the same body of opinion which refuses to accept the contention that monetary, or currency mismanagement is the fundamental cause of the world crisis. We fail to see what logical objection can be raised to plans for improving silver prices if the restriction and destruction of other commodities, of which there is a glut, are held to be justified in the quest for a higher level of commodity prices. Why should silver be held up as the lily white lamb which nobody can touch? Bimetalism has been so exhaustively analysed and re-analysed that we do not propose here to discuss its merits. The fixing of a ratio is admittedly a highly technical and delicate problem, which explains Mr. Cordell Hull's move to curb the enthusiasm of Congress. But there is no real necessity for the fixing of a ratio with gold. Silver could very well be purchased at its present market value and used simultaneously with gold as a currency reserve. This takes us perhaps into the deep waters of the speculation problem. There is something to be said for the viewpoint that stability of currency would be prejudiced by the possible wide fluctuations in the market price of the metal caused by the operations of speculators, but if it is reasonable to assume, for instance, that the manipulation of the Treasury's Exchange Fluctuation Account can be effective in preventing damaging movements in sterling in the present extraordinarily difficult circumstances, it is surely possible, within the bounds of an International agreement, which is an essential prelude to the adoption of a gold-silver standard, to check movements in silver prices. Governments become buyers if the tendency of the metal is to fall and seller if a rise above a predetermined point threatens. It may safely be said, we imagine, that the present price of the metal is close to the bottom. Only the wreck of the Economic conference, while is inconceivable, is likely to falsify this belief. The use of silver therefore as a currency reserve even if no definite ratio is fixed is not likely to encourage fears of any substantial loss. On the contrary it may very well be, always presuming the existence of an international agreement, that silver purchases for the purposes of currency backing will appreciate. Such a possibility is not intended as an argument in favour of bimetalism. Fundamentally every proposal advanced in the search for ways and means of breaking the worldwide depression may be unsound, but if artificial methods are considered wise and practical in other directions, there is no reason we can see why silver should be left out.

British Bans Are Best

The British, harassed by a multitude of rules, regulations, by-laws, and restrictions, are not, after all, the unhappy people on earth. Here are our so-called cousins, the Americans, after enjoying for many years the thrill of drinking illegal beer, now deprived of the privilege and allowed to drink as often and as deeply as they please. That is the cruellest blow yet dealt to a proud, law-eluding people. Who wants to drink legal beer? They might as well be presented with free beer. Human nature is so constituted that forbidden fruits—and fruit juices—are sweetest. Remove all your bans and embargoes, and the attraction disappears. Under Prohibition, Americans have weathered both the great prosperity and the great depression. Under Prohibition they could have weathered anything. Now, alas! in their new-found liberty to slake their thirsts when they choose, there is a danger that they will go rapidly to pieces. In Britain we have our Doras, whom we never tire of denouncing, but it is our Doras that have made us the formidable fellows we are. Without their corrective influence we should be a nation of milkops. It is time we began to realise how much we owe to them. In these testing days victory will go in the long run to the country that has the largest and most efficient collection of Doras, and as there is good reason to believe that our British Doras are second to none in the world, we do see that there is any reason to worry about the future of the British people. British bans, like British buns, are best.

Revenue From Beer

When the Beer Bill was being put through the American Congress, it was estimated that the taxes accruing from the sale of the beverage would bring the Federal Treasury approximately $150,000,000 a year. It begins to look now as if this estimate were far too low. To yield that revenue, the industry would have to sell 30,000,000 barrels a year—an average of slightly more than 82,000 barrels a day. During the first 24 hours of legal beer, reliable estimates put the total sales at between 1,000,000 and 1,500,000 barrels. Naturally sales will not continue in anything like that volume. But even if they go on only at a tenth of that rate—which is a conservative estimate—the tax revenue will be far greater than $150,000,000 a year. It looks as if the impost on beer will be a far more important revenue producer than anyone in America had dared to hope.

WORK-SHY POETS

By ROBERT LYND

I was asked the other day if I could help someone who was collecting the verse of modern English poets who had touched on any phase of working-class life. I rummaged in my memory and in a number of books, and at the end of an hour or so I came to the conclusion that if there is one thing modern poets dislike more than another it is work.

You might read through several anthologies of modern verse without gathering from their contents that any human being ever did a day's work in his life. If posterity judges us by these anthologies it will think that we spent our entire lives in watching birds, looking at daffodils, gazing at the sky, meditating on things in general, with a little love thrown in—in fact, idling our time away in a world in which all the factories, shops and offices had been closed till further notice.

The poets, in short, have depicted us as a race of slackers.

I must except Mr. Kipling from this indictment. Mr. Kipling writes as if he really enjoyed watching other people working. He has sung the praises, not only of soldiers and seamen, but of the engineer and of that honest toiler the sub-editor. Has he not written in honour of the wage-slaves: Men like to Gods who do the work

For which they draw the wage?

But, apart from Mr. Kipling, what living poet is there who would not rather look at a lesser spotted woodpecker than at a coal-heaver?

DROP ROSES FOR SPARKING PLUGS.

It is true that Mr. Laurence Binyon and one or two other poets admit and applaud the existence of such people as builders; but, so far as the bulk of modern poetry is concerned, we might as well be living in the Industrial conditions of the Stone Age.

Now, I am not one of those who believe that poetry should abandon the old themes—love, sorrow, war and the beauty of a world lit by sun and moon and stars. I heard a young Communist poet arguing the other day that poets should cease to write about these things and write instead about machinery and social organisation. I do not agree with him. If I must choose between sparking plugs and roses, I will vote for roses.

At the same time it is a curious thing that poets are the only artists in the modern world who loathe work so bitterly that they can scarcely bring themselves to admit its existence. The novelists, the painters and even the musicians have all shown their appreciation of work. Listening to some modern music with your eyes shut, indeed, you would find it difficult to tell whether you were in a concert-hall or a factory.

It must be conceded to the poets that they have not quite the same objection to work if it is in the country or at the seaside. They like farmers and ploughmen and fishermen well enough; but that may be because farmers and ploughmen and fishermen remind them of lazy country walks and holidays. Maurice Hewlett in "The Song of the Plow," and Miss Victoria Sackville-West in "The Land," are honourable exceptions who seem to me to show a genuine liking for work in their verse.

It was natural for poets in the age of Virgil (whose "Georgics" is more tightly packed with work than any other poem in existence) to confine themselves mainly to such workers as farmers and shepherds; but surely the man in the iron foundry or the ship-builder is as noble a figure as any farmer or shepherd who was ever praised in Greece or Italy.

Wordsworth was inspired to write a poem about a worker who followed so unattractive a trade as that of the leech-gatherer. To me a shop-walker seems an infinitely more dignified figure than a leech-gatherer. Yet where is our modern Wordsworth to address a poem to a shop-walker?

How admirable a theme for verse again is the Clyde engineer, or the silversmith of Sheffield, or the printer!

If I were a poet I should certainly write a poem about printers. There are few things that give me more pleasure than to see printers working, and the harder they work, the better. I like, indeed, to make their work as hard as possible by making my handwriting as illegible as possible. Like the village blacksmith, the printer who has handled my copy may be said to have earned a night's repose.

WAS WHITMAN SINCERE?

I am not sure, however, that all the works of the world would be as appreciative as they ought to be if the poets began to tell them what fine fellows they were and how they envied them their jobs. Walt Whitman exclaims in one of his poems: "O to work in mines, or forging iron!" If I were a miner, that kind of thing would merely irritate me, and I should doubt the sincerity of a vagabond poet who said "O to work in mines!" and yet never applied for a miner's job.

Walt Whitman was very fond of O-ing about the joys of other people's work. He could not think of a farmer without exclaiming:

O the farmer's joys! . . . To rise at peep of day and pass forth nimbly to work.

What he really meant, I suspect, was:

O the poet's joys! To rise at peep of day, look out of the bedroom window, see the farmer pass forth nimbly to work, and then go back to bed again.

Certainly, as a journalist, I should object strongly if a poet began shouting "O the journalist's joys!" at me and at the same time showed as marked a dislike to hard work as most of the poets I have known.

MERCURY AND ICE CREAM.

At the same time, we workers deserve far more appreciation from the poets than we get. We do more to keep the poets alive than all the robin redbreasts and lesser celandines in these islands. I do not want them to celebrate our reckless industry, our eager morning rush to work, our reluctant evening departure from the day's labour.

If they could bear the sight or even the thought of work for a single day they would discover that tram conductors are just as beautiful as shepherds, and that the youth who steers a "Stop-me-and-buy-one" icecream cart through the streets is as wonderful a figure as any Mercury that was ever celebrated in verse.

The Very Idea!

DOCTORING OUR ILLS

By Edward Kelly, M. (S) D.

THERE'S too much conservatism about the medical profession in Hongkong.

What do they know about all the strange diseases people out in this part of the world are subjected to?

We'll grant you that when it comes to housemaid's knee, or menials, or a broken neck, or appendicitis or some other such fashionable complaint, they can strut their stuff. But what about all these other disorders that need new-fangled remedies.

For the benefit of the B.M.A. and the world in general, we are going to list a few modern diseases that are peculiar to Hongkong, together with their remedies.

PEAKITIS NECK.—Peculiar to residents of Kowloon, where, at times, the disease becomes malignant. Women are more susceptible than men. Brought on by gazing too longingly at the Peak. The victim's head becomes stuck in a backward position, giving an appearance similar to that of a hen drinking. The only way to overcome this malady is to take the patient up to the Peak, where a reverse action will take place. If finances are too straitened, a temporary cure may be effected by taking the patient out to watch the P.W.D. digging holes in the streets.

DOUBLE-HEADEDNESS.—This disease is prevalent in the New Territories, along certain Peak Roads, and at Repulse Bay. It attacks young people, and is often contracted in motor cars. Often their heads will remain stuck together for as long as four or five hours. The disease may be recognised by the prolonged whispering that occurs. The only real cure is marriage.

SNOBITIS HONGKONGITIS.—A prevalent disease. Affects people mostly in rarified altitudes, although it is by no means confined to such districts. More easily contracted by people who, at home, cannot even afford a decent appendicitis operation. The disease is incurable so long as the patient remains in the Colony.

BRONCHITIS.—A disease that is almost universal in the Colony. The effects are generally noticeable just after the end of the first month, and major operations are often necessary to effect a cure. The operation is performed in the region of the pocket-book. The disease is attributed to a form of lead poisoning, contracted through continuous association with lead pencils.

"DOLLARDRUMS."—Sudden changes of temperature will bring on this complaint. With a temperature of 1/42, patients have been known to collapse, but they may be brought to in the Ice House. A sudden rise of temperature from, say, 1/42 to 2/- might cause complications. The disease rapidly becomes converted into a gold, and the patient gains weight rapidly, adding many pounds during the period of conversion. If care is not taken, pneu-money may set in, and the patient may become a taipan, or suffer for the rest of his life in some other way. The only hope for anyone contracting this disease is a return of temperature to the normal level of 1/3.

ASSISTANCE FOR
MOTORISTSH.K. Reciprocal
Agreement With Malaya

The Reciprocal Agreement recently entered into by the Hong Kong Automobile Association and the Automobile Association of Malaya forms another link in the chain of Associations which work for the best conditions for motoring and provide assistance and facilities for motorists practically throughout the world. These agreements enable a member of one Association to make use of the benefits and assistance of an Allied Association with no trouble and little or no additional expense.

A motorist from Hong Kong visiting the Straits Settlements, Federated Malay States and the Unfederated Malay States, is now entitled for a period of one month without payment of subscription or fee to all the motoring and legal privileges enjoyed by the A. A. M. ordinary members. Should a longer stay be contemplated the same facilities are at his disposal for six months at an inclusive fee of $5.00 (Straits). ## REVISION OF RULES he thought the members had not been given time to digest the revised rules. He thought it was only proper that members be sent a copy of the rules so that they could compare them with the old rules. The rules once passed became part and parcel of the Club.

The Chairman—Before I ask for any more comment on this point, I would like you, at this meeting, to indicate by show of hands, how many of you have seen these rules, and are satisfied with the reading of them and that you would be prepared to accept them.

Only two hands responded. Mr. Latham pointed out that expense would be curtailed if printers' proofs were to be sent to members.

The Chairman replied it would be very difficult. There were many additional rules, some had been left out entirely and others had been altered. He wanted them to understand there was no intention on the part of the Committee "to go past the members." They simply found it was the principle of other clubs, and had been done by the K.C.C. and the Civil Service.

Mr. Bass asked if it would be best to appoint a commission of four or five, as was done in 1921, when after consideration by the commission the rules were put to the meeting and they were passed without difficulty.

Mr. Erndbury strongly protested against the proposal, as it tended to show a belittling of the Committee, in whom never was vested to revise rules. He could not entertain the suggestion.

APATHY OF MEMBERS. Mr. Marchant said that personally, in England, with all the Trade Unions, he had never heard that members had been "circulated." It has always been the custom, although he did not agree, to have a book or two about where they could be read by members. Even if members were circulated with rules, he guaranteed there would not be an increase of even ten per cent. on the attendance. The apathy of members was the same every time.

Mr. Barry disagreed with Mr. Marchant, pointing out this was a social matter and with Trade Unions the printing of circulars was their bread and butter.

Mr. Marchant—This is only social and we can't even progress.

Mr. Gillard stated that Mr. Bass had drawn objection to the closing time, but other speakers had not made any remarks about the proposed change in rules.

Mr. Field spoke of the expense entailed in printing the rules and circulating them. He seconded Mr. Marchant's proposal that the rules be read out, each in turn, and be discussed there and then.

The Chairman decided it would be in the best interests of the Club to postpone the meeting, to circulate the rules in order that members be given better opportunity to peruse them at their leisure.

In addition there is Cleely Court-nidge of Ghost Train fame, and Winifred Shotter of the brilliant Aldwych cast.

IT speaks volumes for the enter-prise of the management of the Central Theatre that they have secured a rare release of Wheeler and Woolsey's Hold 'Em Jail, coincident with the visit of the famous comedians to Hongkong. The picture received an extraordinary re-

Bert Wheeler and Robert Woolsey were given a great reception by a crowd of nearly 3,000 "fans" when they attended the 9.30 show at the Central Theatre last night.

The House was packed, the famous fun-makers' latest laugh hit "Hold 'Em Jail" being the screen attraction.

Long before 9.30, an enthusiastic crowd lined the thoroughfare outside the theatre.

"It would be a big joke if Wheeler and Woolsey are already inside" was the remark, while another was overheard to say—"Looks like the Prince of Wales is coming."

The crowd, however, were persistent, and their patience was rewarded. Shortly before 9.30, a fawn limousine drew up and Wheeler and Woolsey, looking fresh and cheery, stood up and greeted them. Within the second, autograph seekers swarmed round the stars who signed any piece of paper obligingly.

Police officers, on special duty to control the throng of traffic and pedestrians, cleared a passage and Wheeler and Woolsey entered the building when everybody was seated, the famous comedians commenced a tour of the building, amid rounds of applause. In the stalls, Wheeler caused a mild sensation. Walking down the centre passage, he shook hands with the ticket man, and followed this up by kissing three Chinese ladies! Woolsey only twirled the inevitable cigar.

After the show, the crowd collected once again and the inveterate autograph seekers confronted them. They obliged.

CLIVE Brook's latest vehicle The Night of June 13, which is having a run at the Queen's is first rate drama, well developed and sustained as a result of some smart acting by the principals and the slick producing work of the Paramount studios. Clive Brook likes this type of work, and with Charles Ruggles, to provide the lighter touches, the entertaining value of the picture cannot be ignored.

21 YEARS AGO

Extracts From the
"Telegraph" Files

The following extracts are from the Hongkong Telegraph for the week ended May 18, 1912.

The rate of the dollar on de-man was 2/0½.

The need for an official shorthand writer in the Supreme court was urged during the hearing of a lengthy case.

Mr. H.E. (now Sir Henry) Pollock introduced a motion in the Legislative Council for the plot of land west of the Supreme Court to be levelled and turfed. The site is known as Statue Square and was then popularly called the "finest site".

A Bill for the re-constitution of the Hongkong Court of Appeal, was introduced, providing for three appellate judges.

CINEMA AND SHOPPING CENTRE.

While work is proceeding on the preparation of the section, the Government, on its side has drawn up plans for the laying out of the area. The new scheme will be treated in conjunction with the needs of the present settlement, and the undertakings of a public character being planned are in the expectation of the district being developed to its fullest possible extent. Thus, in the list of public amenities contemplated, is the extension of the present Public Park, the preparation of a new children's play ground, the construction of a Police Station, a new market, shops, a cinema theatre and other public buildings. The needs of the large community expected to take up residence in the district will be fully served, without impinging on its essentially suburban character.

DECISION STILL AWAITED

AQUATIC ENTHUSIASM DEVELOPING AT Y.M.C.A.

ARGYLLS' CHALLENGE IN SHANGHAI

The Y.M.C.A. gave an indication of the strong challenge they are likely to make for the Water Polo League championship when last night they defeated the Tsung Sing club in a friendly game in the Y.M. bath.

Although Schreuder, their star goal scorer played between the sticks, and Kerr, customary defender went up forward, the Young Men were as a team much superior to the visitors.

The Chinese, however, are a newly formed club and have yet plenty of time to settle down. Kerr (3), Goldman (2) and Chatterton scored for the winners, Tsung Sing being unable to make any impression on the homester's defence.

The teams were: Y.M.C.A.—Schreuder, Lange and Turner; R. Goldman; E. Raiton, W. Kerr and H. Chatterton. Tsung Sing—Tung Shui-fai; Lam Shui-so and Ip Shun-cheung; Poon Ping-man; Cheung Wai-kwong, Kong Cheuk-choi, and So Tin-mo.

Mr. E. F. Selk refereed the game.

C. B. C. GALA.

The "Y" are sending a team to the Chinese Bathing Club gala this week. It has not yet been definitely selected; but it is presumed that choice will be made from the following: W. Schreuder, A. Donn, E. Raiton, J. Lange, R. Goldman, A. Chatterton. Prominent absentees will be B. Rasmussen and E. F. Selk, and their absence will somewhat weaken the team. Nevertheless it is obvious that the Y.M.C.A. will be powerfully represented and should easily hold their own against all comers.

The aquatic fever has fairly smitten the Y.M.C.A. and never before has so much enthusiasm been displayed. A series of water polo matches are now in the course of arrangement and they include meets with South China, University and Chinese Civil Service.

The match with South China will probably be staged on Wednesday next at 6 p.m.

WHAT WILL ARMY DO?

Association news is rather scarce, but a meeting of the Council is being held this evening several important items being listed on the agenda.

As entries for the Water Polo League do not close until Wednesday next, it is not yet possible to give the entrants. There is still some uncertainty as to the attitude of the Army Area Sports Board to the Swimming Association, and it is not yet known whether they will affiliate to the Association.

If only for the sake of the large number of swimmers affected it would be a pity if the Board decided to remain aloof from the Association, as the water polo league offers a regular series of games and the experience of meeting first class teams which are invaluable.

However, it is understood that whether or not the Sports Board throw in their lot with the Association, they have given permission for Service members of affiliated clubs to play for the private clubs in the Association's programmes.

From Shanghai comes the news that the Argylls have entered no less than six teams in the Shanghai Water Polo League, which just shows how rich in talent is the Battalion.

SPORTS MEETING.

Indian R.C. Hold Annual Event.

A VARIED PROGRAMME.

A varied programme of events has been arranged for the third annual sports meeting of the Indian Recreation Club, which will be held on the Club's grounds at Sookumpoo on Sunday afternoon. The meeting is taking place later in the year than formerly, and the Sports Sub-Committee have wisely reduced the number of strenuous events. The Mile Race, which has always attracted a large number of entries, has been cut out on account of the warm weather, and several novel events have been put in. Children will be specially provided for in several races, which should prove popular with them.

There will be one race confined to members of the Indian Division of the St. John Ambulance Brigade, and another, the 100 yards championship, is open to visitors.

Miss J. d'Arcy has kindly consented to distribute the prizes at the conclusion of the meeting.

K.C.C. TO SELECT LEAGUE TEAMS

TENNIS TOURNAMENT THIS WEEK END

All members of the Kowloon Cricket Club, interested in league tennis, and who desire to try to obtain a place in one of the three teams entered in the league by the Club this summer, are asked to attend the Club to take part in a selection contest, which will take the form of an American tournament during the week end. The tournament, from which it is decided definitely to select the league sides, will start to-morrow afternoon at 2.30, and will continue on Sunday afternoon. Every pair will meet each other on the league system of one set not to exceed twelve games.

To-morrow's Football Match

SERVICES VERSUS CHINESE

A team has been selected to represent the Chinese on Saturday next, May 20, against the Services, in the Charity match for the Hongkong Children's Playground Fund. Kick-off, on the Hongkong Football Club ground, is set at 4.30 p.m. The team—Lim Thin-chai; Leung Ju-chun, Lee Ting-sung; Ho Choi-yin, Leung Wing-chui, Lee Bok-wai; Tang Kwong-sun, Mak Shui-hon, Fung King-cheong, Wong Mee-shun, Yeung Shui-yick. Reserves—Lai Kwok-chui, Au Kim-fung, Leung Wing-tat. The Services team will be—Gnr. Comber (Royal Artillery); Gnr. Allen (Royal Artillery) and L/C Mullane (South Wales Borderers), capt.; Marine Davey (Royal Marines), Gnr. Pender (Royal Artillery) and Pte. Podmore (South Wales Borderers); Pte. Baldry (Lincoln), L. ### LAWN BOWLS PROGRAMME

100 Per Cent. Record Police and Kowloon B.G.C. to Meet

SEVERAL ATTRACTIVE GAMES TO-MORROW.

AFTER the first fortnight of the bowls season, ties in the two divisions become more and more interesting.

Thus to-morrow the big attraction is the meeting of the Kowloon Bowling Green Club and the Police, at present the only two undefeated teams in the senior division.

The game should provide a real test for both sides, and the outcome may have no small bearing on the championship in the later stages of the season.

In several quarters the Police, because of their away victories against the Craigengower and K.C.C., are favoured to gain their third success, whereas one cannot ignore the advantage which lies with the Kowloon club of being on their own green.

The Police are turning out their strongest combination for their third successive Saturday which bodes ill for their hosts. If there are many more than half a dozen shots separating the sides at the close of the 21st head, it will be surprising.

C.C.C. AT FULL STRENGTH.

The Craigengower, who tasted the fruits of victory for the first time in the season last week, will entertain their Valley neighbours, the Civil Service. The champions will enjoy the services of D. Rumjahn and E. el Arculli, and should, in spite of the difficulty being experienced in "finding" the green since its alterations last winter, win a keen contest.

The visit of the champions to the Yacht Club, 1932 runners-up, provides the tit-bit in the second division programme. Craigengower will have to display a big improvement on last week's showing if they are to rob the Yachtmen of their 100 per cent. record. Frankly I think the task will be beyond them, as there is a definite lack of balance in the team at the moment with Field's rink being the only to show anything like consistently good form.

Civil Service and the Kowloon Bowling Green Club, with identical league records, will clash at the Happy Valley, and this will provide the Peninsula team with a real test. They overhauled the Police last week on foreign soil, and there is no guaranteeing the fact that the three rinks are playing first class bowls, fully capable of upsetting the best of teams whether they be at home or away.

There appear to be no material team changes for any of the games to-morrow, so that form alone will decide the issues.

These are some of the selected sides:

BEATS IRISH CHAMPION

LYTTLETON ROGERS OUTPLAYED IN THREE SETS

AMERICA WINNING ZONE FINAL

H. Nunoi, the Japanese No. 1 ranking player, accomplished his best performance since arriving in Europe this year by defeating Lyttleton Rogers, the Irish giant and champion, in the opening match of the second round Davis Cup tie between Ireland and Japan in Dublin.

CHAMPION FOR THIRD TIME

GOLF TITLE TO MISS WILSON

London, May 18.

Miss Enid Wilson established a post-war record for the English Ladies Open Golf Championship to-day, when she won the title for the third year in succession.

Miss Wilson, who is from Nottingham, defeated Miss Diana Plumpton, of Frinton, in the final over 36 holes by five up and four to play.

In the semi-final round Miss Wilson beat Miss Doris Park by the same margin.—Reuter.

REVISION OF RULES

CRAIGENGOWER C. C. DISCUSSION

A DEMAND BY MEMBERS

The question of revising the Club's rules, and the correct procedure for circularising the proposed alterations was fully discussed at an extraordinary general meeting of the Craigengower Cricket Club last night.

Mr. B. W. Bradbury, President of the Club, presided. Addressing the meeting, he said that the old rules of the Club had existed since 1921, and the Committee had spent much time in revising them, following some of the up-to-date rules which exist in most of the other Clubs, very closely. The Committee at first thought of sending a copy of the new rules to every member, but as there were some 400 members it would be fairly expensive, and it would have meant that if any amendment or alteration were made, the copies would be of no use whatever. That was the only reason, he said, that the new rules, in order to make the meeting as short as possible, the new rules had been accepted en bloc. The Committee had had at least two special meetings to consider revision of the old rules.

VITAL INTEREST.

Mr. Bana pointed out that the revision of rules was of vital interest to members of the club, and he thought that members should be given copies. The Committee, he said, had drafted new rules which drastically altered the privileges of members. He thought the wording of the new rules left very much to be desired.

Explaining further, Mr. Bradbury said that practically the only reason for not circularising the rules was the question of expense involved. He had made it his business, and had found out it was the principle of other clubs to post up books or copies of proposed, revised or new rules, where members were able to read them. He was told that that was the procedure with all other clubs. Once the rules were passed they would be put into book form and printed.

Mr. Latham asked the Chairman for an explanation of the drastic changes that affected the liberties of members.

The Chairman—I think that was your statement Mr. Bana. Will you answer it?
Mr. Bana replied the Committee had razed members down and had fixed the closing time for 1 a.m. every night. He thought the measure a bit too drastic, although he agreed with the principle that they should have a closing time.

Mr. J. S. Landolt drew attention to the very small attendance at the meeting. Posted at the Club, the rules could only be read by four people in one night. They could come to the Club from 5 p.m. to 1 a.m. and it took at least two hours to study the rules carefully. Two persons could not read the book at the same time, he contended.

BOOKS AVAILABLE.

Mr. Bradbury—I am told by our Honorary Secretary that there have been two books, one in the bar, and the other on the notice board.

Mr. Landolt—An inquiry there has been another in a concealed corner behind the hatstand.

Mr. Barry said that while appreciating the work of the Committee, Nunoi disposed of Rogers in three sets, and although the first and third went to twelve games each, the young Japanese won the second with comparative ease, conceding three games.

Rogers is regarded as one of the most natural and finest players in Europe to-day. During the last twelve months he has enjoyed a series of outstanding successes, and Nunoi's achievement is such to indicate that Japan will have a big say in the European zone of the Davis Cup competition this summer.

Jiro Satoh beat McGuire with ease and Japan thus took a useful lead of two matches to love on the first day. Nunoi is almost certain to beat McGuire, so that Japan's entry into the third round is practically assured.

U. S. STILL WINNING.

America went a long way to winning the North American Zone final to-day at Montreal, when Ellsworth Vines and Allison won their opening singles, against Canada.

Wright, the Canadian No. 1 failed to take a set from Allison, while Vines just toyed with Nunn's win with the loss of seven games.

DETAILS.

The scores as called by Reuter were:

EUROPEAN ZONE

SECOND ROUND.

Japan lead Ireland at Dublin by two matches to love. Nunoi (Japan) beat Lyttleton Rogers 7-5, 6-3, 7-5; Jiro Satoh (Japan) beat McGuire 6-2, 6-2, 6-2.

NORTH AMERICAN ZONE

FINAL

America lead Canada at Montreal by two matches to love.

W. Allison (America) beat Wright 6-2, 7-5, 6-2; Ellsworth Vines (America) beat Nunn 6-3, 6-1, 6-3.

B. H. LYON AND GLOUCESTER

TO CAPTAIN THE COUNTY IN ALL MATCHES

A SKIPPER OF VISION

Beverley H. Lyon, the Rugby School and Oxford Blue (1922 and 1923), will captain the Gloucestershire eleven this season, and hopes to play in all matches. The announcement was made at the annual meeting of the county club in a telegram characteristically worded by one of the most enterprising captains of the day:

"Competent to play in all matches. Hope to win most of them."

Lyon was unable to play very much last summer. It was the season before that he roused the somnolent authorities by the introduction (in collusion with others) of frank declarations just to revitalise county cricket matches. His broadside forced the Advisory Committee to readjust the wording of Law 64. Everyone knows of the fine forcing nature of Lyon as a batsman, of his keenness as a field, and of his ability to keep his side on its toes. Both in 1929 and 1930 Lyon had aggregates of 1,600 runs or thereabouts.

P. Van der Gucht, the former Radley captain, who will keep wicket in place of Smith, was elected vice-captain. He will be able to play regularly, and his presence should strengthen the team.

Mr. A. J. Gardner, who presided at the meeting, stated that the loss on the year's working amounted to £1,400, due largely to the bad weather experienced, especially at the beginning of the season. But the club still has £1,200 in hand. Sir Walter Preston, M.P., was elected President.

6 laminations
of Beech and Ash

The new Spalding "Lamina" Multi-ply will be the sensation of 1933. The frame is made of six layers of Ash and Beech woods, laminated like the leaves of a carriage spring. Tested under all conditions and in tropical climates not a single frame has warped the fraction of an inch. The absolutely rigid frame gives a terrific pace to the ball and ensures accurate placing. Write to the address below for booklet giving full details and prices.

YESTERDAY'S MARKET STEADY

According to Messrs. Swan, Culbertson and Fritz, the New York market was steady yesterday. Business done: 4,110,000 shares. The Wall Street Journal reports: After being depressed all day, owing to the break in Wheat and to profit-taking, the market rallied in the last half-hour on the declaration of the regular dividend by the United Corporation. Ironage Magazine reports: Steel Production was 35% of capacity, the highest since June, 23, 1931, due to orders from miscellaneous sources, including better business from plate fabricators and the farm equipment industry. It is doubtful whether there can be further important gain without support from railroads and the building industry, although the former are commencing to order in a small way and the latter are expected to increase their orders as a result of anticipated vigorous public works programme. ## CINEMA SCREENINGS.

NOTES SUPPLIED BY THE THEATRES

Clara Bow, most emotional of screen stars, has never been pictured in an entirely emotional role. Many times married in her screen characterizations, she has never been shown as a mother.

Yet in "Call Her Savage," her initial Fox picture now playing at the King's Theatre, she discards the flapperisms that made for famous, portrays a tensely-dramatic role and depicts the rich emotionalism of mother love.

"Call Her Savage" was adapted by Edwin Burke from Tiffany Thayer's much-discussed novel, and was directed by John Francis Dillon.

An Unlucky Night

The drama that sometimes goes on back of the quiet facade of common-place suburban homes provides the basis for "The Night of June 13," the new film now showing at the Queen's Theatre. It deals with four families whose lives and fates have become rather intricately tangled, and it tells a story that is as exciting in its nearness to everyday existence as in its melodrama.

"Jack's The Boy"

Jack Hulbert is now definitely placed in the front rank of the world's comedians. His subtle sense of clowning, his fascinating, rhythmic dancing and jolly method of "putting over" a musical number are artistic achievements essentially his own. When he is partnered by Cicely Courtneidge (his wife) there are no limits to their exquisite foolery. They are perfectly matched in "Jack's The Boy," the new Gaietyborough comedy to be shown at the King's Theatre next Sunday, and have abundant scope for their brilliant drolleries.

Jack Hulbert as a tyro policeman gives a wonderful performance—excellent when mixed up with traffic or crooks, and fascinating when making love and crooning a romantic song followed by some marvellous Scottish cat, with her delicious Cockney-cum-Scottish accent. Altogether "Jack's The Boy" is the kind of entertainment that can be seen and heartily enjoyed by everyone.

"Red Dust"

One of the most anticipated productions of the new season comes to the Queen's Theatre on Sunday with the co-starring appearance of Clark Gable and Jean Harlow in "Red Dust."

The locale is Cochinchina, with Gable playing a hardened plantation foreman who has forced himself to become completely brutalized in an effort to remain superior to his environment of fever, tropical heat and treacherous natives.

To Miss Harlow falls the role of Vane, born to the tropics, hard-bitten, perfectly at home on the plantation and equal in strength and animal pugnacity to the men. It is when the beautiful wife of an engineer comes to the plantation and is involved in a love affair with Gable that the jealous and fiery nature of this savage-like creature asserts itself and brings the action of the plot to a dramatically compromising situation.

FRENCH DEMOLISH TIENSIN NAVAL HOSPITAL

Nanking, May 18. Admiral Chen Shao-kuan, Minister of Navy, told press representatives to-day that the French Authorities have not only ignored the Chinese protest regarding the sale of the Chinese naval hospital in the French Concession in Tientsin, but a greater part of the building has already been pulled down.

Admiral Chen reiterated that the sale by Marshal Chang Hauchang was illegal and that the Government would continue protesting to the French Authorities.—Router.

CONTRACT BRIDGE

By W. E. McKenney

Most no trump contracts are made up of aces, kings and queens. However, game can seldom be made with high cards alone and a successful game contract requires intermediate or supporting cards.

Here is a hand in which the declarer had neither a predominance of high cards nor a long suit to run, and the success of his contract hinged upon the proper use of eight and nine spots.

The Bidding

North and South were vulnerable, East and West were not. South and West passed but North opened the bidding in third position.

tion with one club. He did not have sufficient strength to bid one no trump and preferred to bid clubs rather than spades in order to give his partner a better opportunity to make a one-over-one bid.

East overcalled with one heart and South bid one no trump. West passed and North showed his second four-card suit by bidding two spades. South bid two no trump and North carried the contract to three no trump.

The Play

West opened the nine of hearts, on which East played the queen and declarer won the trick with the ace. He next led the three of clubs, finessing the eight spot in dummy which drove out East's queen.

East realized that another heart lead would establish two heart tricks for the declarer and a spade or diamond lead might also cost a trick. The club suit was apparently established in any event, so East returned a club.

Declarer cashed the ace and jack of club in dummy, but purposely refrained from leading the last club. He next led a spade to the jack in his own hand and West refused to win the trick.

Declarer then led the eight of spades, and when West still refused to cover, he finessed the nine in dummy. He led the queen of spades, discarding a diamond from his own hand, and this time West played the ace and returned another spade, fearing to be left in other spades, leading.

East was beginning to squirm at the continued discards and finally discarded down to the king, ten and five of hearts and the jack and seven of diamonds. Declarer kept three hearts and the queen-ten of diamonds.

The last club was now led from the North hand, and whatever East discarded, his position was hopeless. The only trick East could make was the king of hearts, and declarer succeeded in making four no trump.

AMERICA'S APPEAL

SPECIAL CONFERENCE

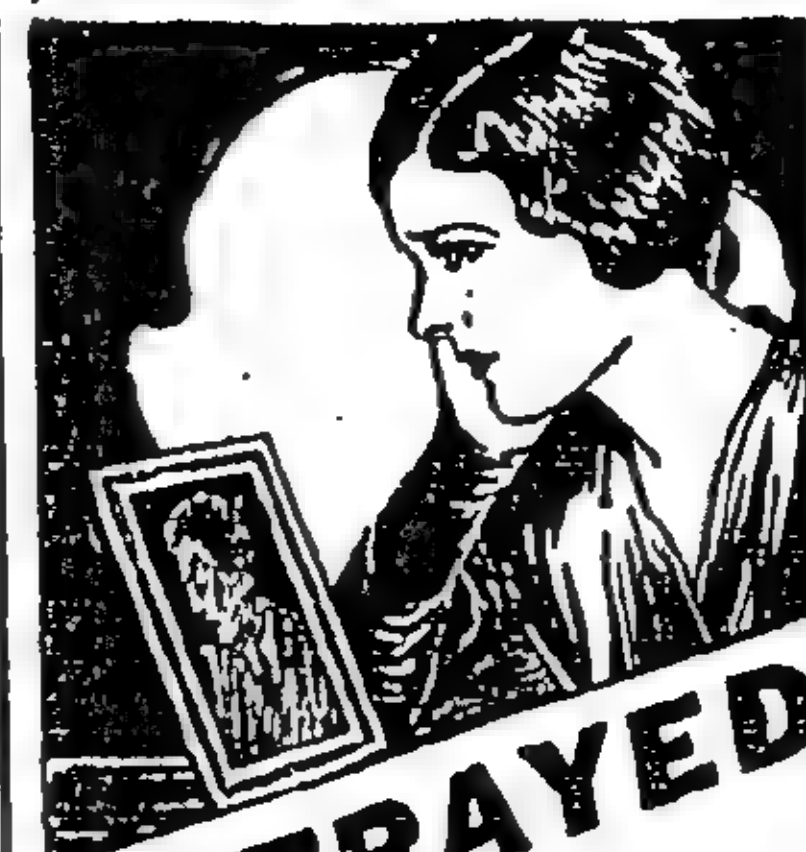

Nanking, May 18.
China will unconditionally accept Mr. Roosevelt's appeal, which was discussed at a specially convened conference here this afternoon. The reply will be brief, merely expressing acceptance.

Although it will contain an abstract of the observations on Japanese military activities, there will be no direct reference to the situation in North China.—Reuter.

Not A Single Day Should Pass

Without elimination of waste matter from your system. That is Nature's way. If you are irregular in this respect you should correct matters at once by using Pinkettes.

The occasional dose of Pinkettes gives a gentle, natural but thorough cleansing to the food tract, prevents partial constipation from becoming a serious chronic condition. If you suffer from bilious attacks, poor appetite, liverishness, flatulence or indigestion, the occasional internal cleansing with Pinkettes will set you free from these troubles, make you brighter and happier in every way. Take a dose of Pinkettes to-night, and to-morrow note how different you feel. All chemists can supply you with Pinkettes, Liver and Laxative Perfection.

BETRAYED
BY PYORRHEA

SHE had a great many friends. Now she is ashamed to open her mouth! The brilliance and natural charm of her smile are gone.

Pyorrhea is the price she paid for neglect. Its work is insidious. At first, just a little blood on her tooth brush, next the gums became spongy. They burst! Finally, the teeth loosened in their sockets. Now, some or all may have to be pulled out!

Don't you pay this price. You can keep your smile (and your friends) by protecting your teeth NOW. Pyorrhea at first attacks the gums, so use Forhan's for the Gums. Made specifically to prevent this dread disease, it also keeps your teeth clean and white.

Start at once, don't gamble on the future. Prevent Pyorrhea before it betrays you.

Forhan's for the Gums is the formula of R.J. Forhan, D.D.S., specialist in mouth diseases. It contains Forhan's Pyorrhea Arising agent developed by Dr. Forhan and used by dentists throughout the world in the treatment of pyorrhea.

BURN

Tokyo, May 18.
It is reported from Chinchow that Japanese troops occupied
Miyun at 4.30 p.m.
General Hattori's brigade has occupied Shihmenchen, ten miles south from Malanyu, and has pursued the retreating Chinese in the direction of Kichow, according to a Japanese report from the front.
Resuming the attack, the

a lot of high scoring.
Brooklyn ran up a tally of 14
against St. Louis, and Chicago, after being blanked out in their first game of a double header with the Giants, rattled up ten runs in the following encounter.
Philadelphia helped themselves
to nine against Chicago in the

Dogs—A Sense of Proportion Wanted

To The Editor Hongkong Telegraph

Sir—Allow me to thank you for your excellent leader in to-night's paper on Dogs—"A sense of proportion wanted."
You have stated the case so well that I have little to add to this distressing subject. It is indeed a sad reflection of the Englishman's love of animals that such destructive methods are authorised in this Colony.
I am sorry for the policemen who have to go out on these shooting expeditions. They cannot get much fun out of it, the blame must be placed on those who issue the orders.
Yours truly,
"A."

JAPANESE RESPONSE TO ROOSEVELT APPEAL

SOUTH AFRICAN ELECTION

A TRIUMPH FOR THE COALITION

Capetown, May 18.
While many election results have still to come in, an overwhelming majority for the National Government Coalition is already assured.
Hitherto 105 Coalitionists have been returned. Only ten members of the opposition have been elected, and these include only three Labour candidates.—Reuter.

AU REVOIR IN BLAZE OF GLORY

MISS E. WILSON'S GOLF FEAT

"HAS SERVED HER PUBLIC"

(Special to "Telegraph").

(By Telegraph. Copyright, Telegraphic Messages Ordinance, 1895. Received, May 19, 1933, 10.55 a.m.)

London, May 18.
Miss Enid Wilson of Nottingham, retired from championship golf in a blaze of glory to-day by beating Miss Diana Plumptre of Frinton by 5 and 4 in a thirty-six holes final of the English Ladies' Open Championship.
Miss Wilson, who is still young and one of the greatest women golfers in the world decided, after emulating the feat of Miss Cecil Leitch and Lady Margaret Scott of winning the title three times, that she has done all the public expects from her.

RELENTLESS TECHNICIAN.

In winning the championship to-day, Miss Wilson applied her greater knowledge of the technicalities of the game in relentless fashion until the end.
She and her opponent won three of the first ten holes, but from the tenth to the end of the round, Miss Plumptre was fighting for halves against a superior driving opponent.
Miss Plumptre was always fighting bravely, but she did not win a hole from the tenth of the first round to the eleventh of the second.—Reuter.

ANGLO-AMERICAN COOPERATION

EXTENSION TO THE FAR EAST?

London, May 18.
The question of whether Anglo-American co-operation towards the establishment of security and the improvement of economic conditions in Europe equally extends, or is to be extended, to similar aims in the Far East, was raised in the House of Commons to-night by Erskine-Bolton.
Replying, Mr. Ramsay MacDonald said that until he knew what instructions with regard to security the United States had given to its representatives at Geneva, he could add nothing to what he said in the House of Commons on May 9.
In regard to economic conditions, that would depend upon what was done at the Economic Conference.—Reuter.

BRITISH STOCKS DOWN

IRREGULAR TONE OF MARKET

London, May 18.
The Stock markets closed with some irregularity, British funds finishing under the best with war loan 3 1/2 per cent. at 99 1/2. German bonds, after an earlier recovery, fell back.—British Wireless.

HARBINGER OF ATTACK?

JAPANESE PLANE'S TWO VISITS TO PEKING

(FROM OUR SPECIAL CORRESPONDENT)

(By Telegraph. Copyright, Telegraphic Messages Ordinance, 1895. Received, May 19, 1933, 10.55 a.m.)

PEKING, MAY 19.
GREAT EXCITEMENT PREVAILED IN THE CITY THIS MORNING WHEN SHORTLY AFTER NINE-THIRTY ANOTHER JAPANESE AEROPLANE APPEARED, MAKING AN EXTENSIVE SURVEY OF THE CITY AND THE SUBURBS.
The visitor was fired upon from isolated points but did not drop any bombs.
Flying very low, apparently carrying out observations of troops concentrations, the visitor was plainly visible to the thousands who watched the flight.

It is expected that the incident will revive the tension which has relaxed in the few two days with the arrival in Peking of General Huang Fu, coupled with the slowing up of the Japanese advance.
Once again the suspicion has been keenly aroused that the Japanese intend to occupy Peking. The capture of Miyun after severe fighting yesterday brought the Japanese to within forty miles of Peking and the close interest manifest in the military defences of the city are thought to be a preliminary to attack.

Later.

Shortly after ten o'clock, the machine or a similar plane, again flew over the city, eventually flying away to the north, probably for a Japanese base in the Miyun area.

Considerable firing by Peking's air defences left the visitors quite unscathed.—Our Own Correspondent.

PEACE TALK AND THE GUARANTEES

Shanghai, May 19.
An official Japanese spokesman has informed the Shanghai Times that though there is a possibility of a truce or an armistice between the Japanese and Chinese military forces in North China, any written armistice will be useless unless the Chinese Government can guarantee that the Chinese armies will not infringe the terms thereof.—Reuter.

"PROVOCATION."

Washington, May 18.
The Japanese Ambassador, Mr. Dehuchi, told reporters to-day that it is the intention of Japan to withdraw her troops from North China Proper as soon as they get an assurance that they will not be harried by Chinese raids from south of the Great Wall.
The Japanese have no intention of taking Peking or Tientsin unless there is "provocation" by the Chinese.—Reuter.

A. A. GUNS IN ACTION.

(Special to "Telegraph").
(By Telegraph. Copyright, Telegraphic Messages Ordinance, 1895. Received, May 19, 1933, 12.30 p.m.)

Peking, May 19.
Peking met another thrill this morning when a mysterious plane appeared flying at about three or four thousand feet over the east wall of the city.

An anti-aircraft gun in that section on the town slapped in a couple of rounds ineffectively.

The planes passed over the city and disappeared in an unknown direction.
Its identity was not established and there was an impression in some quarters that it might be the American airman, Major Dueltle, arriving from Tientsin and heading for Nanyuan aerodrome a few miles south of the city.

OVER FOR AN HOUR.

Later, however, the plane put in another appearance and its movements clearly indicated that it was a Japanese machine.

The city's air defences opened fire whenever and whenever the machine came within range, but there was no visible effect. After being over or in the vicinity of Peking for an hour, the plane disappeared to the north.—Reuter.

CHINESE FALLING BACK.

Peking, May 19.
Chinese troops continue to fall back from Kupeliow and along the Peking-Mukden railway.

At Lutai and near Tangshan a wide expanse of country separates the opposing armies and a resumption of serious hostilities may not be expected for some time.

It is understood that Huang Fu intends to summon all leading commanders from the fronts to consult them on the situation. He is assuming the dual role of chief military officer and of "unofficial foreign minister."

MUSCLE SHOALS SCHEME

PRESIDENT RATIFIES MEASURE

(Special to "Telegraph")

(By Telegraph. Copyright, Telegraphic Messages Ordinance, 1895. Received, May 19, 1933, 12.30 p.m.)

Washington, May 18.
President Roosevelt has signed the "Muscle Shoals Tennessee Valley" Bill.

It provides for Government co-operation in the Muscle Shoals hydro-electric nitrate plant as part of a big scheme for the development of the Tennessee Valley.

An earlier Bill was vetoed by

M. Daladier, the French Premier, who may meet Herr Hitler in an effort to find a solution to the disarmament tangle.

ECONOMIC PARLEY

PREPARATIONS IN LONDON

MR. T. V. SOONG ON HIS WAY

London, May 18.
Preparations for the assembly of the World Economic Conference are going on apace.

One of the first arrivals will be Mr. T. V. Soong, the Finance Minister of the Nanking Government, who left Washington for New York yesterday, prior to sailing for England.

Mr. Soong was given a cordial send-off by Mr. Cordell Hull, the Secretary of State, who accompanied him to the station.

KING'S BROADCAST.

When the King opens the World Economic Conference on 12th June, his voice will be heard all round the world.

The General Post Office, by wireless telephony and telegraphy, are arranging the biggest linking up that has ever been attempted.

Foreign countries are being invited to take part in the scheme which is being drawn up with the new international telephony headquarters at Faraday House and the great wireless station at Rugby as the focal points.

WORLD-WIDE LINK-UP.

From Faraday House, all the capitals of Europe can be brought in while via Rugby, the King's message will be carried to Sydney, Montreal, New York, Cape Town, Bombay and Cairo.

Administrations not only throughout the Empire but in most foreign countries will receive the speech and rebroadcast it to their nationals.

COST OF CONFERENCE.

The extra cost of holding the conference in London instead of at Geneva will be borne by the British Government.

Sir John Simon mentioned to-day that for this purpose £18,500 had been included in the Foreign Office vote while the cost of adapting the new Geological Museum Building to accommodate the Conference was estimated at £7,500.

When asked whether the conference would sit continuously until its work was completed, or adjourn if its task was incomplete to allow the delegates to attend the League Assembly in September, the Premier said that was, of course, a matter for the conference itself to decide.—Reuter and British Wireless.

ROYAL REVIEW OF TERRITORIALS

TO BE HELD IN HYDE PARK ON JUNE 24

London, May 18.
A Royal review of the territorial forces in the London District will be held in Hyde Park on

BERLIN'S LAST WORD

HOPE AGAIN BEGINS TO FADE OUT

NO NEED FOR A STATEMENT!

Geneva, May 18.
The hopes engendered by Herr Hitler's speech that the immediate difficulties in the Disarmament Conference might be overcome, have received a severe blow.

Indications from Berlin are that Germany is not likely to make any concession on the key question unless she is permitted to re-arm.

The first difficulty which has cropped up, before the resumption of the General Commission at Geneva, arises on the question of procedure at the meeting to-morrow, and the problem is causing some embarrassment in disarmament circles.

STANDPOINT CLEAR!

The Germans declare that Herr Hitler has made the German standpoint clear and that it is therefore unnecessary for Herr Noddy, their principal delegate, to speak.

They contend that it is now for the French to put their cards on the table, but it seems most unlikely that the French will be ready to speak so soon and, in any event, there will be no French Minister in Geneva to-morrow.

BRITAIN TO SPEAK.

Consequently, it is expected that in order to avoid adding to existing complications, Captain Anthony Eden, the British delegate will fill the breach and Mr. Arthur Henderson, the chairman of the Conference is also likely to speak.

Germany's mood may be judged from a message from Berlin stating the German view that the resumption of the disarmament negotiations will very quickly show that France has no intention of interpreting Germany's equality claim as Hitler does, namely, full quantitative and qualitative equality of arms.

If so, says the Berlin report, the difficulties of the Geneva Conference appear insurmountable for Germany has stated her last word in the matter and no further concessions are to be expected from her.—Reuter.

RATIFYING PACT OF NON-AGGRESSION

Franco-Soviet Treaty Fully Approved

Paris, May 18.

The Chamber to-day unanimously passed the motion approving of the exchange of articles for the ratification of the Franco-Soviet non-aggression pact signed in Paris on November 29, 1932.

M. Herriot and M. Paul-Boncour, the Prime Minister, spoke on behalf of the motion.

There was an attendance of 520 deputies.—Reuter.

PLAYING WITH SNAKES

A JUBILEE STREET INCIDENT

A Chinese was fined $4 or four days in prison by Mr. Wynne-Jones this morning for causing an obstruction in Jubilee Street, with a sack of snakes.

The Police officer stated the defendant had a crowd round him, and he was performing tricks with the reptiles.
The Magistrate—Jubilee Street is too crowded with people to let you go playing about with snakes. Defendant—I never let them

DALADIER-HITLER MEETING

URGED BY MR. DAVIS IN PARIS

Paris, May 18.

It is understood that Mr. Norman Davis, in view of the new difficulties which have arisen regarding procedure, has suggested a meeting between M. Daladier, the French Premier, and Herr Hitler at Geneva as the only way out of the threatened Franco-German impasse.

It is believed that M. Daladier is favourable.—Reuter.

Brighter Employment Figures

AN ENCOURAGING OUTLOOK

London, May 18.

The Minister for Labour, Sir Henry Betterton, informed the House of Commons to-night that there were 91,000 more persons in employment to-day than a month ago, and 92,000 more than a year ago.

Compared with January, the numbers in employment showed an increase of 249,000. That meant, said the Minister, that in the year under review, when the trade of the whole world had been paralysed by exchange restrictions, when there had been political disturbances and a monetary crisis in nearly every country, the position in Britain was not only incomparably stronger than a year ago, but he thought the outlook was more encouraging than for a very long time.—British Wireless.

R.A.M.C. OFFICER MARRIED

QUIET WEDDING AT PEAK CHURCH

There was a quiet but pretty wedding at the Peak Church yesterday afternoon when Miss Grace Edith Thacker, of Bombay, was married to Major Alastair Caulfield Jebb, R.A.M.C., the Rev. Lewis Bryan officiating.

The Church was tastefully decorated with pink and white gladioli

LOVE or MONEY?

BY H. W. CORLEY

CHAPTER XXXIII

There was only a week in which to prepare for the journey. It was a busy seven days. Lottie gave notice to her employer that she was leaving and did it in such a way that Henri, bursting into aggrieved tears, demanded that she pack up her belongings and go immediately!

Lottie did that. She had no sooner reached her apartment than the telephone rang.

"I'm not at home," she told Sallie. "If it's for me it's Henri. He probably wants to ask me to come back."

The voice at the other end of the wire was Henri's.

"But Miss Carr can never be reached at home in the day time," Sallie explained, dolefully. "Miss Carr is employed."

There was a galle's sputter at the other end of the connexion. Sallie's manner was composed as she answered. "Oh, you are Miss Carr's employer? She did not come in today?" There was a pause and then Sallie said, "Oh, I see!"

With one hand over the transmitter she turned, smiling. "It's Henri all right. He wants to hire you back."

"Tell him I haven't come in yet," Lottie instructed. "Say you'll deliver the message when you see me."

Obsequiously Sallie complied. She put down the telephone saying, "So you're really going to South America, are you?"

Lottie sensed worry in Sallie's tone and hastily explained Mona's plan in regard to the apartment. "I'll pay half the rent until the lease expires anyhow. That'll be next October. I want a home to come back to."

"Maybe I can get another girl to come in while you are gone and save you that expense."

Lottie shook her head. "It's all right. Get another girl to come in if you like, but get her out again when I come back, won't you? Meanwhile I'll swing my share of the rent. I can afford it," she added, "and it's nice to have a place to come back to."

The days flew by. Besieged at the telephone by a repentant Henri who had not taken her announcement of a new job and departure from town seriously, Lottie finally capitulated to the extent of working two afternoons.

The little apartment was piled with luggage. A wardrobe trunk stood open, filled with a careful selection of clothes. Sallie brought a nurse who had lived in the tropics who offered much advice.

"Take cotton clothing," she insisted. "Even cotton underwear. It's much cooler. Be sure all your hose are light coloured. Mosquitoes feast on darker shades."

She urged Lottie to take plenty of cotton frocks and leather instead of rubber soled sports shoes. Laundry was cheap but not rapid. The girls would need plenty of clothes.

They ordered plenty.

Lottie, whirling back and forth between her own apartment and Mona's home, arrived with this bit of information, that "tricky little model just Mona's size," this hint as to sensibility.

"I hear the Miranda is a regular tub," she insisted, "and that means mal de mer with a vengeance." Mona was equally busy. There were papers to sign, the house to close, servants to discharge temporarily and pay for the interval. Mona was too recently removed from the terrors of a lost job to do anything except what she considered the right thing by her employees.

The girls bought cameras, dark glasses, magazines (the Miranda carried no supply), fancy little deck bags to hold glasses, books and handkerchiefs.

A supply of remedy for seasickness. Mrs. Callahan had told her about it.

"How does your family feel about the trip?" Lottie asked Mona.

"Great. I'll see Bud, you know."

They packed articles of lingerie by the dozen, for the trip was a long one.

"Laundresses come down to the boat," Sallie informed her amusedly. "And, even though I am looking for some way to get around the will, I loved my husband. In a way, I mean. In every way except the way I love Harry. That last day John promised to do for Harry what I am trying to find a way to do now."

"Wait until we see Steve," Lottie advised. "Steve is the boy who will show us how."

"Maybe. If he and Harry aren't furious with us for showing up."

"That's a thought. That is a thought, Mona!" Lottie paused in the occupation of wrapping some now perfume in a cocoon of silk hose. Then she shook her head. "They can't stay mad long," she decided. "Didn't they both say there were hardly any attractive women down there?"

"I am not going with the idea of attempting to bowl anyone over," Mona remarked, repeating a phrase that was a favourite of Lottie's. "You don't have to attempt to do that, darling," Lottie said. "You do it no matter what your intentions are."

The bags were packed and Lottie and Mona were arrayed in dark winter dresses to be shed the second day out. Two fur coats lay waiting to be worn to the boat and then brought back by Sallie and placed in storage.

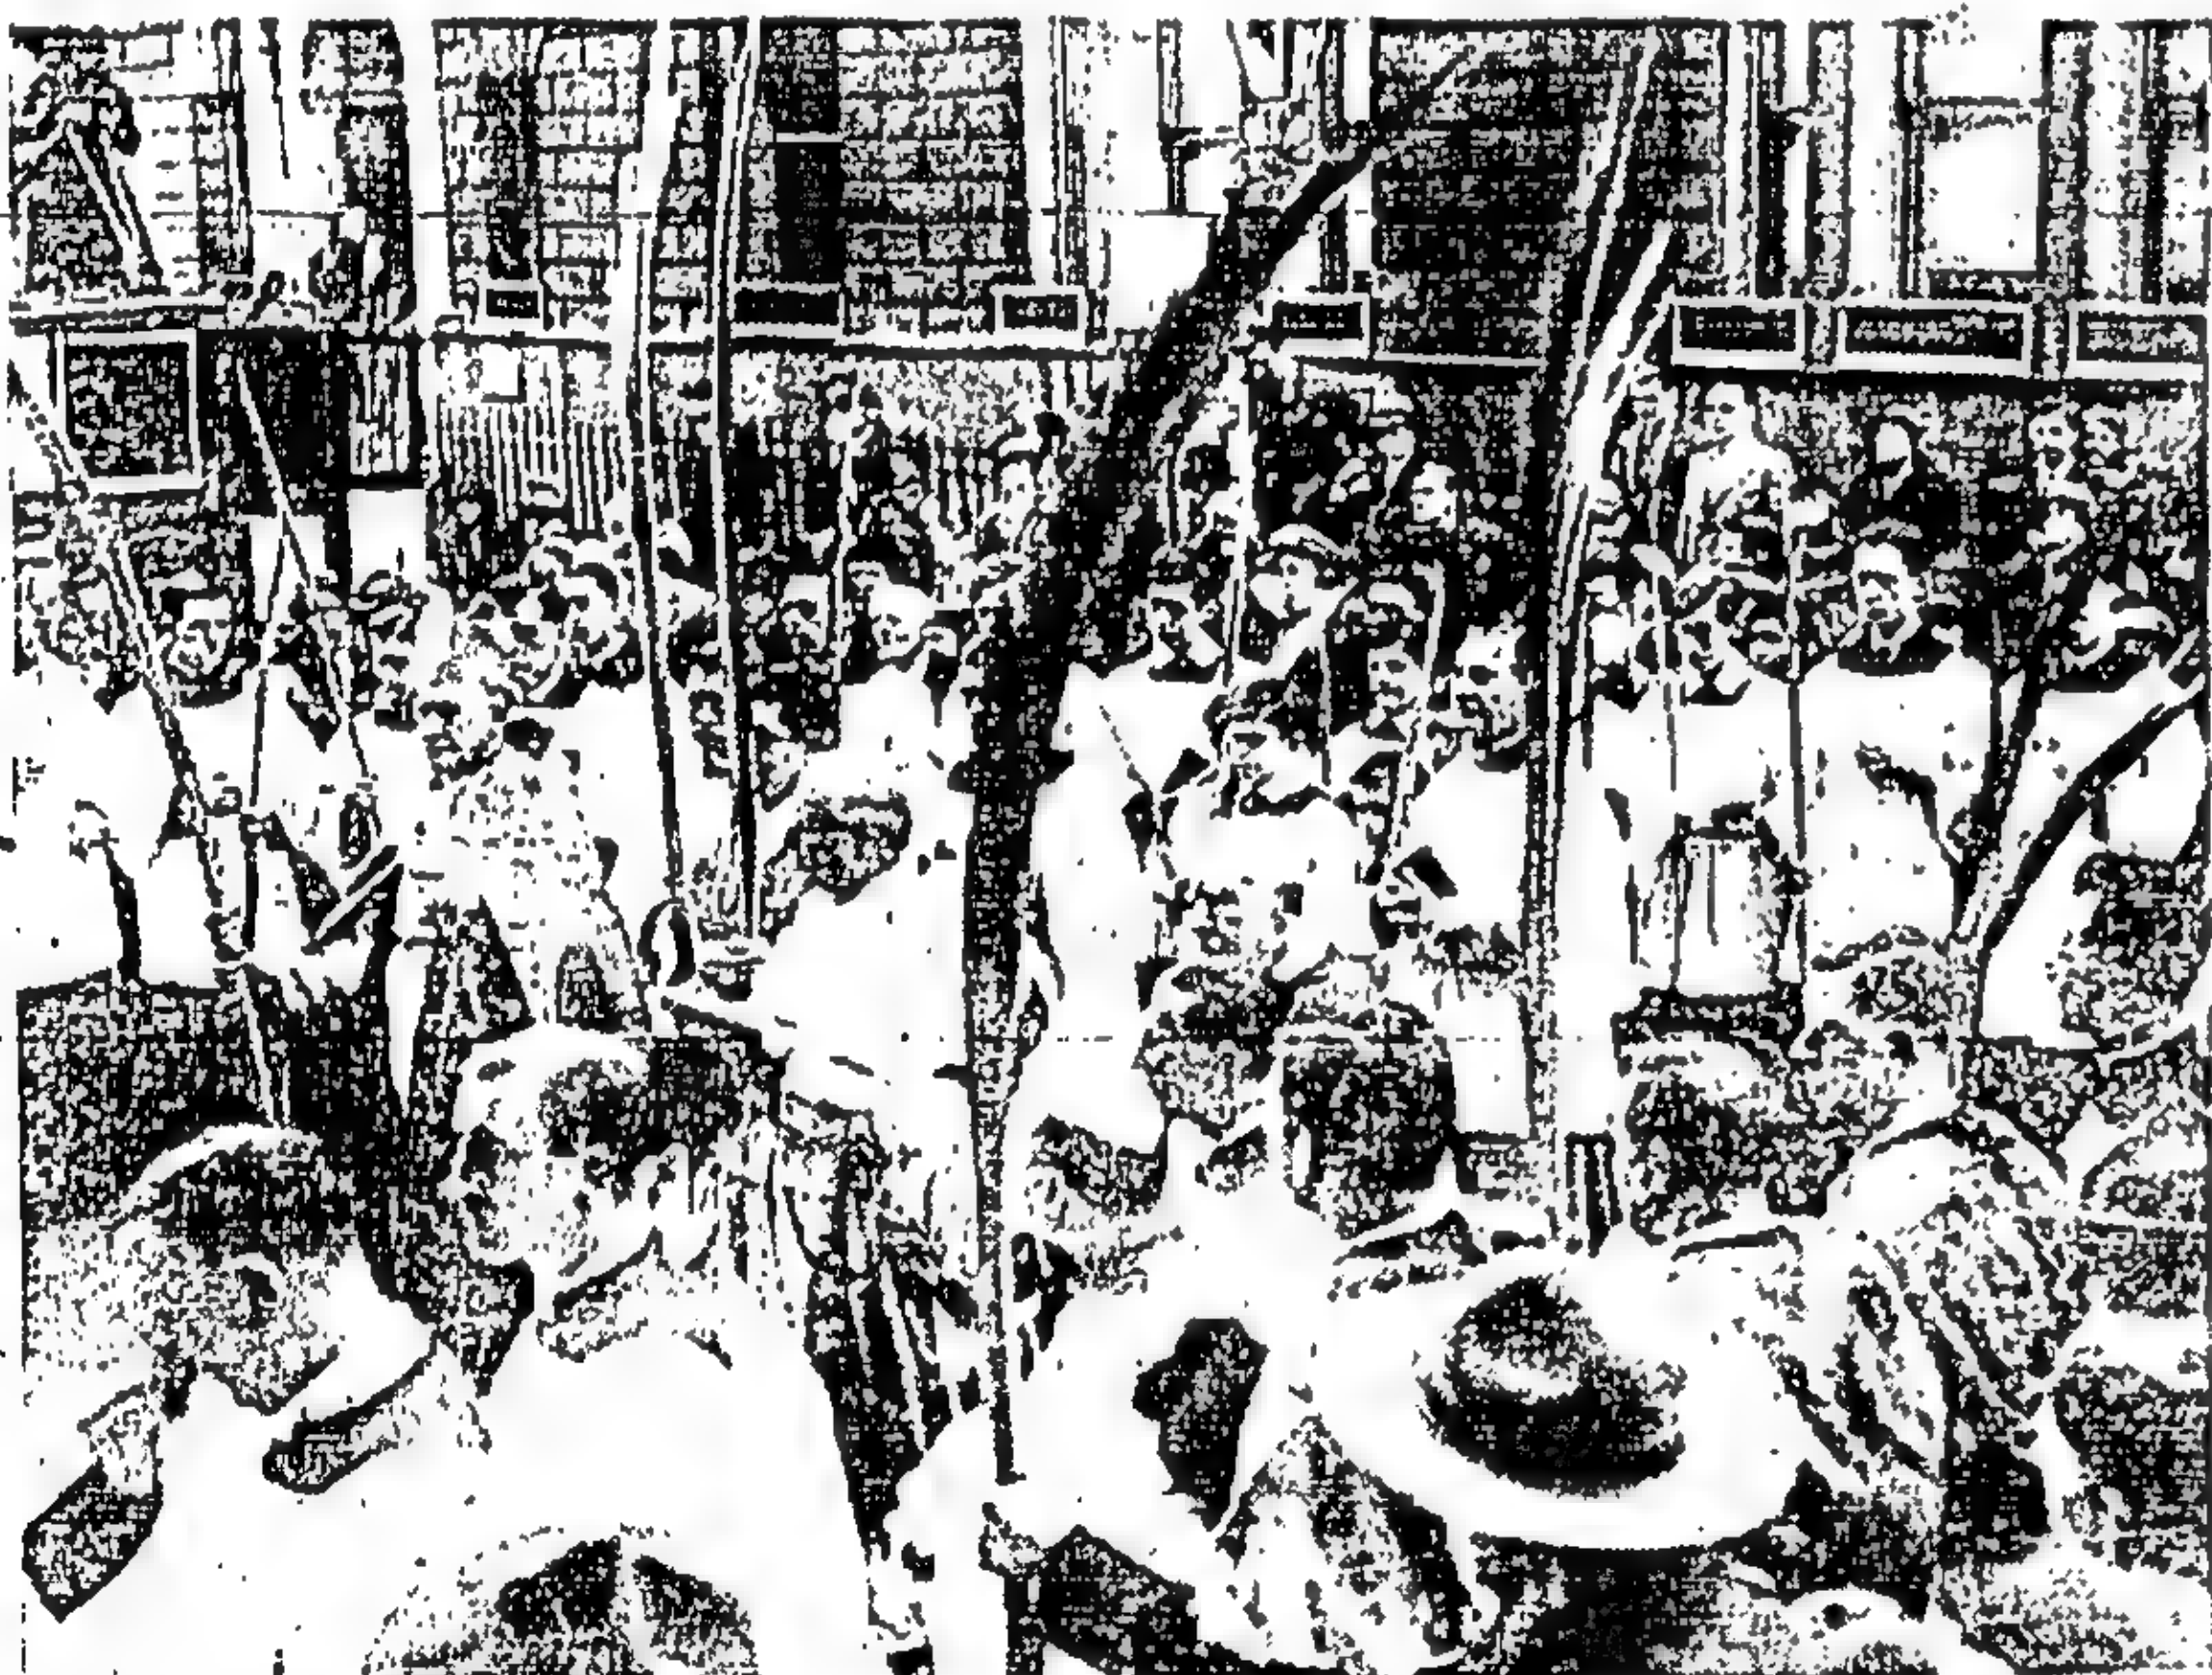

"Make your first costume do for the first two days," Sallie told them. "Nobody dresses on board like the Miranda. The third day probably will be warm enough to start emulating summer."

Luncheon was served in Mona's sitting room. Later the car brought over the entire Moran family. They were going to the boat.

Mona and Lottie, hatted and coated, flew about checking everything. A taxi was called for the remaining baggage and Sallie, as the least interested member of the party about to see the girls off, consented to ride with the bags. Lottie and Mona rode in the car with the Morans.

Servants would close the house and lock it within an hour. As the car whirled through the park Mona felt that a new era in her life was beginning. And as it proved.

Mona had met with little difficulty in booking passage. An official from the Virgin Islands had cancelled a suite. It was, obviously, the best to be had on the Miranda and Mona promptly engaged it.

There were telephone calls, goodbyes, last minute purchases.

Sallie rushed to buy a six-months' stock of cosmetics and packed them compactly and cleverly in single small overnight bag.

"What are you going to do with the Empress?" Lottie asked. She had hoped that a quixotic urge would insist that Mona present it to Steve.

"Leave it with Withington's, of course," Mona had decided against taking any jewels except her wedding ring. They would only prove a burden.

Monday came and went. Tuesday, Wednesday. They were to sail Wednesday afternoon at four.

The baggage had gone aboard the day before. Only the last few things remained to be done. A single suitcase for last minute packing lay open on the chaise longue.

For the most part Mona had limited her wardrobe to black and white or simply white. Black was a difficult colour to wear in the heat. It was warm and out of keeping with tropical surroundings.

"Morning isn't used as much as it has been," she told Lottie. "And, even though I am looking for some way to get around the will, I loved my husband. In a way, I mean. In every way except the way I love Harry. That last day John promised to do for Harry what I am trying to find a way to do now."

21 YEARS AGO

Extracts From the "Telegraph" Files

The following extracts are from the Hongkong Telegraph for the week ended May 18, 1912.

The rate of the dollar on do-man was 2/0 1/2.

The need for an official shorthand writer in the Supreme Court was urged during the hearing of a lengthy case.

Mr. H.E. (now Sir Henry) Pollock introduced a motion in the Legislative Council for the plot of land west of the Supreme Court to be levelled and turfed. The site is known as Statue Square and was then popularly called the "Onest site".

A Bill for the re-constitution of the Hongkong Court of Appeal, was introduced, providing for three appellate judges.

CINEMA "SHOTS" AND "SEQUENCES"

WHAT IS REALLY WRONG
WITH THE CINEMASOME COMMENTS ON A LOCAL
CRITIC'S OBSERVATIONS

WHERE CLARA BOW'S FILM FAILS

TUMULTUOUS RECEPTION FOR
WHEELER AND WOOLSEY

By "Celluloid"

If any credence is to be placed in the programme version of "Call Her Savage," it would appear that this is another film where alternative endings were shot and that local patrons saw the one other than that described in the programme. The idea of alternative endings to a film is not new. They were made in "All Quiet on the Western Front," although in that case Cecil de Mille's version was finally selected. Milestone, the director made one which showed newspaper presses rushing out special editions with the glaring headlines "All Quiet on the Western Front." The one actually adopted was de Mille's—a superimposition of the central figures of the picture walking over the war grave yards of Flanders and looking back wistfully over their shoulders as they trudged along the scarred countryside.

JUDGED on what the programme told us I feel sure that the King's Theatre made a very wise choice in the case of Call Her Savage. There is quite sufficient blah-blah molo-drama in the picture as presented without adding to it. The picture is a typical Clara Bow effort. It is also typical of Hollywood in its most painfully sexual colours. The picture meets the case and supplies several answers to a correspondent's trenchant letter in a contemporary this week in connexion with films. But of that, more anon. The great failing of Call Her Savage is its restricted appeal. Beyond Clara Bow's personal film fans, it is doubtful if many people could derive a great deal of pleasure or entertainment from it. The picture is a concentrated effort on the part of producer, director, photographer and all the other technicians to exploit Clara Bow to her fullest. The rest of the cast are made merely incidental, with the result that all of the well known ability of such players as William Robertson, Estelle Taylor and Gilbert Roland is enveloped in a rather futile endeavour on the part of Clara Bow and her directors to picturise Dynamite.

choice in the case of Call Her Savage. There is quite sufficient blah-blah molo-drama in the picture as presented without adding to it. The picture is a typical Clara Bow effort. It is also typical of Hollywood in its most painfully sexual colours. The picture meets the case and supplies several answers to a correspondent's trenchant letter in a contemporary this week in connexion with films. But of that, more anon. The great failing of Call Her Savage is its restricted appeal. Beyond Clara Bow's personal film fans, it is doubtful if many people could derive a great deal of pleasure or entertainment from it. The picture is a concentrated effort on the part of producer, director, photographer and all the other technicians to exploit Clara Bow to her fullest. The rest of the cast are made merely incidental, with the result that all of the well known ability of such players as William Robertson, Estelle Taylor and Gilbert Roland is enveloped in a rather futile endeavour on the part of Clara Bow and her directors to picturise Dynamite.

THERE is a mother's-love-for-her-baby scene and a death bed sequence which succeed in some measure in revealing the complex nature of the girl Clara Bow characterises, but they are painful and appealed to me as being superfluous. Sex is predominant as a theme, which is another illustration of how Hollywood misinterprets. The underlying motif behind the book was a psychological study of a girl who inherits half cast blood through a love affair of her mother. The picture merely sets out to portray the girl's reactions to her associations with men.

THE thoughtful analysis of the film industry to-day, its shortcomings, and trend in the future which, under the pseudonym of "Observer," was published in a contemporary this week encourages one to believe that Hongkong is not averse to taking some sort of intelligent study of the cinema. One can sympathise with the writer's search for a solution to a very obvious problem. "Observer's" chief points are (1) the cinema industry has reached perfection; (2) the films have exploited every available theme and are barren in ideas; (3) exploitation of the "star" system is a fallacy; (4) the introduction of the talking machine has restricted the appeal of the pictures and they no longer enjoy international appeal. Dealing with the future aspects of the cinema "Observer" notices the movement of the best aspects of the cinema from Hollywood to England and points to the necessity of this, and finally makes an assessment of film stars and their individual values.

"Observer" in his first point intends to convey that the cinema has reached perfection so far as its mechanics and plant is concerned, the majority will be willing to agree with him. But if he is referring to the art of cinema, consequent upon which is its value as an entertainment, I think the opposite is the case. And one of the chief reasons for this is found in "Observer's" fourth point, the retarding influence of the talking machine. It is undeniable that the misuse of sound through the speaking voice has both reduced the appeal of the film as well as prevented the development of the artistic side of the industry. As Paul Rotha rightly points out Chaplin appeals to the American, Englishman, Frenchman, Japanese, Chinese, Indian and Eskimo, and it is simply because he has not allowed a language to invade his pictures. Everybody can interpret Chaplin whereas as soon as dialogue is introduced the interest in the picture is confined to the people who can understand the language.

BUT Chaplin, in his City Lights proved very clearly that sound can be applied to the cinema to add effect and entertainment. Disney has demonstrated the same point. The talking machine may yet become a thing of the past in the cinema world, but sound apparatus will remain, and when once the industry is free from the shackles of speech, it will turn its thoughts more seriously to sound images. The synchronisation of sound effect with action, together with proper manipulation of the camera will go a long way towards reaching nearer the heart of true cinema. Before this can be accomplished, however, other aspects of film production will have to be revised.

THE commentator's observations regarding themes and the way in which the films have run them to seed contain more than a grain of truth. But this, in regard to Hollywood productions bears some relation to his further point concerning lack of historical background from which America suffers. Hollywood productions carry so much propaganda of modern America, that they have little time for the more of the industry which calls for re-historical features of the country. Unfortunately the same stone can be cast at the English studios. Judged from the British output seen in Hongkong to date, as well as reading about the rest, it is easy to see that England's great historical, economic and industrial events of past and present have still to find expression through the silver screen. The educational aspect of the cinema has been shockingly neglected in America, England and France, and to a lesser extent, Germany. Russia is the only country as yet to exploit the educational theme in any seriousness.

AS to "Observer's" assessment of present day screen actors, he will doubtless find many to disagree with his selections. But realised everything it promised, we agree with his selections. But preference for this or that "star" is always a purely personal matter. What the industry has yet to learn is that the "star" system is pernicious, based as it so often is on sex appeal, rather than histrionic ability or artistry of interpretation. The exploitation of the "star" at the expense of the more attractive and "art" sides of the cinema will one day have to be stopped if the cinema is to progress in the right direction. Mr. Samuel Goldwyn, in a recent contribution in the Daily Mail referred to the post-war movement of "bigger and better pictures." There is still a crying

SILVER'S FUTURE

Nothing has attracted more attention in the results of the economic discussions at Washington than the new-found prominence of place provided for the silver question. Scarcely though past experience has taught us to be, there is no doubt that America's lead has changed the entire outlook and that, in consequence, Hongkong's interest in the World Economic Conference has become specific. There is every chance of action to rehabilitate silver. Already certain steps have been taken, the most important being, perhaps, the agreement between the three primary producers, the United States, Canada and Mexico. This agreement covers both remonetisation and some form of bimetalism and it is significant of the change of feeling that four hours sufficed to produce it. It is also clear that the British experts have abandoned their air of indifference to the fate of silver. Nevertheless, bimetalism will not be adopted without encountering strong opposition. The opponents of artificial stimulation of silver values argue that it is fallacious to imagine that there is any short cut to permanent prosperity by monetary manipulation. But these must form the same body of opinion which refuses to accept the contention that monetary, or currency mismanagement is the fundamental cause of the world crisis. We fail, to see what logical objection can be raised to plans for improving silver prices if the restriction and destruction of other commodities, of which there is a glut, are held to be justified in the quest for a higher level of commodity prices. Why should silver be held up as the lily white lamb which nobody can touch? Bimetalism has been so exhaustively analysed and re-analysed that we do not propose here to discuss its merits. The fixing of a ratio is admittedly a highly technical and delicate problem, which explains Mr. Cordell Hull's move to curb the enthusiasm of Congress. But there is no real necessity for the fixing of a ratio with gold. Silver could very well be purchased at its present market value and used simultaneously with gold as a currency reserve. This takes us perhaps into the deep waters of the speculation problem. There is something to be said for the view-point that stability of currency would be produced by the possibility wide fluctuations in the market price of the metal caused by the operations of speculators, but if it is reasonable to assume, for instance, that the manipulation of the Treasury's Exchange Fluctuation Account can be effective in preventing damaging movements in sterling in the present extraordinarily difficult circumstances, it is surely possible, within the bounds of an International agreement, which is an essential prelude to the adoption of a gold-silver standard, to check movements in silver prices. Governments become buyers if the tendency of the metal is to fall and seller if a rise above a predetermined point threatens. It may safely be said, we imagine, that the present price of the metal is close to the bottom. Only the wreck of the Economic Conference, while is inconceivable, is likely to falsify this belief. The use of silver therefore as a currency reserve even if no definite ratio is fixed is not likely to encourage fears of any substantial loss. On the contrary it may very well be, always presuming the existence of an international agreement, that silver purchases for the purposes of currency backing will appreciate. Such a possibility is not intended as an argument in favour of bimetalism. Fundamentally every proposal advanced in the search for ways and means of breaking the worldwide depression may be unsound, but if artificial methods are considered wise and practical in other directions, there is no reason we can see why silver should be left out.

British Bans Are Best

The British, harassed by a multitude of rules, regulations, by-laws, and restrictions, are not, after all, the unhappiest people on earth. Here are our so-called cousins, the Americans, after enjoying for many years the thrill of drinking illegal beer, now deprived of the privilege and allowed to drink as often and as deeply as they please. That is the cruellest blow yet dealt to a proud, law-eluding people. Who wants to drink legal beer? They might as well be presented with free beer. Human nature is so constituted that forbidden fruits—and fruit juices—are sweetest. Remove all your bans and embargoes, and the attraction disappears. Under Prohibition, Americans have weathered both the great prosperity and the great depression. Under Prohibition they could have weathered anything. Now, alas! in their new-found liberty to slake their thirsts when they choose, there is a danger that they will go rapidly to pieces. In Britain we have our Doras, whom we never tire of denouncing, but it is our Doras that have made us the formidable fellows we are. Without their corrective influence we should be a nation of milkops. It is time we began to realise how much we owe to them. In these testing days victory will go in the long run to the country that has the largest and most efficient collection of Doras, and, as there is good reason to believe that our British Doras are second to none in the world, we do see that there is any reason to worry about the future of the British people. British bans, like British buns, are best.

Revenue From Beer

When the Beer Bill was being put through the American Congress, it was estimated that the taxes accruing from the sale of the beverage would bring the Federal Treasury approximately $150,000,000 a year. It begins to look now as if this estimate were far too low. To yield that revenue, the industry would have to sell 30,000,000 barrels a year—an average of slightly more than 82,000 barrels a day. During the first 24 hours of legal beer, reliable estimates put the total sales at between 1,000,000 and 1,500,000 barrels. Naturally sales will not continue in anything like that volume. But even if they go on only at a tenth of that rate—which is a conservative estimate—the tax revenue will be far greater than $150,000,000 a year. It looks as if the impost on beer will be a far more important revenue producer than anyone in America had dared to hope.

WORK-SHY POETS

By ROBERT LYND

I was asked the other day if I could help someone who was collecting the verse of modern English poets who had touched on any phase of working-class life. I rummaged in my memory and in a number of books, and at the end of an hour or so I came to the conclusion that if there is one thing modern poets dislike more than another it is work.

You might read through several anthologies of modern verse without gathering from their contents that any human being ever did a day's work in his life. If posterity judges us by these anthologies it will think that we spent our entire lives in watching birds, looking at daffodils, gazing at the sky, meditating on things in general, with a little love thrown in—in fact, idling our time away in a world in which all the factories, shops and offices had been closed till further notice.

The poets, in short, have depicted us as a race of slackers. I must except Mr. Kipling from this indictment. Mr. Kipling writes as if he really enjoyed watching other people working. He has sung the praises, not only of soldiers and seamen, but of the engineer and of that honest toiler the sub-editor. Has he not written in honour of the wage-slaves: Men like to Gods who do the work

For which they draw the wage?

But, apart from Mr. Kipling, what living poet is there who would not rather look at a lesser spotted woodpecker than at a coal-heaver?

DROP ROSES FOR SPARKING PLUGS.

It is true that Mr. Laurence Binyon and one or two other poets admit and applaud the existence of such people as builders; but, so far as the bulk of modern poetry is concerned, we might as well be living in the industrial conditions of the Stone Age.

Now, I am not one of those who believe that poetry should abandon the old themes—love, sorrow, war and the beauty of a world lit by sun and moon and stars. I heard a young Communist poet arguing the other day that poets should cease to write about these things and write instead about machinery and social organisation. I do not agree with him. If I must choose between sparking plugs and roses, I will vote for roses.

At the same time it is a curious thing that poets are the only artists in the modern world who loathe work so bitterly that they can scarcely bring themselves to admit its existence. The novelists, the painters and even the musicians have all shown their appreciation of work. Listening to some modern music with your eyes shut, indeed, you would find it difficult to tell whether you were in a concert-hall or a factory. It must be conceded to the poets that they have not quite the same objection to work if it is in the country or at the seaside. They like farmers and ploughmen and fishermen well enough; but that may be because farmers and ploughmen and fishermen remind them of lazy country walks and holidays. Maurice Hewlett's "The Song of the Plow" and Miss Victoria Sackville-West's "The Land" are honourable exceptions who seem to me to show a genuine liking for work in their verse.

It was natural for poets in the age of Virgil (whose "Georgics" is more tightly packed with work than any other poem in existence) to confine themselves mainly to such workers as farmers and shepherds; but surely the man in the iron foundry or the ship-builder is as noble a figure as any farmer or shepherd who was ever praised in Greece or Italy.

Wordsworth was inspired to write a poem about a worker who followed so unattractive a trade as that of the leech-gatherer. To me a shop-walker seems an infinitely more dignified figure than a leech-gatherer. Yet where is our modern Wordsworth to address a poem to a shop-walker?

How admirable a theme for verse again is the Clyde engineer, or the silver-smith of Sheffield, or the printer!

If I were a poet I should certainly write a poem about printers. There are few things that give me more pleasure than to see printers working, and the harder the better. I like, indeed, to make their work as hard as possible by making my handwriting as illegible as possible. Like the village blacksmith, the printer who has handled my copy may be said to have earned a night's repose.

WAS WHITMAN SINCERE?

I am not sure, however, that all the works of the world would be as appreciative as they ought to be if the poets began to tell them what fine fellows they were and how they envied them their jobs. Walt Whitman exclaims in one of his poems: "O to work in mines, or forging iron!" If I were a miner, that kind of thing would merely irritate me, and I should doubt the sincerity of a vagabond poet who said "O to work in mines!" and yet never applied for a miner's job.

Walt Whitman was very fond of O-ing about the joys of other people's work. He could not think of a farmer without exclaiming:

O the farmer's joys! . . . To rise at peep of day and pass forth nimbly to work.

What he really meant, I suspect, was:

O the poet's joys! To rise at peep of day, look out of the bedroom window, see the farmer pass forth nimbly to work, and then go back to bed again.

Certainly, as a journalist, I should object strongly if a poet began shouting, "O the journalist's joys!" at me and at the same time showed as marked a dislike to hard work as most of the poets I have known.

MERCURY AND ICE CREAM.

At the same time, we workers deserve far more appreciation from the poets than we get. We do more to keep the poets alive than all the robin redbreasts and lesser celandines in these islands. I do not want them to celebrate our reckless industry, our eager morning rush to work, our reluctant evening departure from the day's labour.

If they could bear the sight or even the thought of work for a single day, they would discover that tram conductors are just as beautiful as shepherds, and that the youth who steers a "Stop-me-and-buy-one" icecream cart through the streets is as wonderful a figure as any Mercury that was ever celebrated in verse.

The Very Idea!

DOCTORING OUR ILLS
By Edward Kelly, M. (s) D.

THERE'S too much conservatism about the medical profession in Hongkong.

What do they know about all the strange diseases people out in this part of the world are subjected to?

We'll grant you that when it comes to housemaid's knee, or measles, or a broken neck, or appendicitis or some other such fashionable complaint, they can strut their stuff. But what about all these other disorders that need new-fangled remedies.

For the benefit of the B.M.A. and the world in general, we are going to list a few modern diseases that are peculiar to Hongkong, together with their remedies.

PEAKITIS NECK.—Peculiar to residents of Kowloon, where, at times, the disease becomes malignant. Women are more susceptible than men. Brought on by gazing too longingly at the Peak. The victim's head becomes stuck in a backward position, giving an appearance similar to that of a hen drinking. The only way to overcome this malady is to take the patient up to the Peak, where a reverse action will take place. If finances are too straitened, a temporary cure may be effected by taking the patient out to watch the P.W.D. digging holes in the streets.

DOUBLE-HEADEDNESS.—This disease is prevalent in the New Territories, along certain Peak Roads, and at Repulse Bay. It attacks young people, and is often contracted in motor cars. Often their heads will remain stuck together for as long as four or five hours. The disease may be recognised by the prolonged whispering that occurs. The only real cure is marriage.

SNOBITIS HONGKONGITIS.—A prevalent disease. Affects people mostly in refined attitudes, although it is by no means confined to such districts. More easily contracted by people who, at home, cannot even afford a decent appendicitis operation. The disease is incurable so long as the patient remains in the Colony.

BRONCHITIS.—A disease that is almost universal in the Colony. The effects are generally noticeable just after the end of the first month, and major operations are often necessary to effect a cure. The operation is performed in the region of the pocket-book. The disease is attributed to a form of lead poisoning, contracted through continuous association with lead pencils.

DOLLARDRUMS.—Sudden changes of temperature will bring on this complaint. With a temperature of 1/4°, patients have been known to collapse, but they may be brought to in the Ice House. A sudden rise of temperature from, say, 1/4° to 2/2° might cause complications. The disease rapidly becomes converted into a gold, and the patient gains weight rapidly, adding many pounds during the period of conversion. If care is not taken, pneumonia may set in, and the patient may become a talpan, or suffer for the rest of his life in some other way. The only hope for anyone contracting this disease is a return of temperature to the normal level of 1/8°.

GREATER KOWLOON TONG

BIG EXPANSION PROJECTED

Of the plethora of Garden cities contemplated or already embarked upon in the Colony, that which is likely to dwarf all others is the Kowloon Tsai development scheme, work on which commenced some three months ago.

The scheme comes as a natural expansion of Kowloon Tong, which heretofore appears to have no limits except the natural ones offered by the barrier of the Kowloon range of hills separating it from Shatin. Towards the north-east, however, the scheme can, with the least resistance, be continued to Kowloon City, and this is the ultimate object of the proposals when they reach their fullest scope.

Meanwhile, the first section of something like 45 acres of hilly ground, is being prepared, and when completed will form a substantial addition to Kowloon Tong garden city, at present limited by the boundary of Waterloo Road.

MODEL LAY-OUT.

The lay-out of the new area will conform to the present Kowloon Tong settlement, and it is the intention of the Government to put the sites up for auction in the usual way with conditions preserving the garden city character of the district.

The ambitious character of the scheme is fully appreciated, and it is recalled that when first mooted, and provision for it accordingly made in the Estimates for Public Works Extraordinary, the intention was to carry out the work in such a manner that it could be abandoned at any time if desirable.

A bolder outlook appears to have since set in, and $100,000, the first portion of a sum of $400,000 earmarked for the purpose, is to be spent this year in levelling work.

NEW ROAD TO KOWLOON CITY. Roughly, the project in its widest scope, embraces the whole area, now alternating between hills and low-lying ground, behind Prince Edward Road.

On the north side it extends as far back as the barrier of the Kowloon range of hills will permit. A road which will be the continuation of Cornwall Road, the present northern boundary of Kowloon Tong garden city, will link the new settlement up with Kowloon City by a route running past the Hau Wong Temple.

The first section of this big scheme extends along the eastern boundary of Waterloo Road, parallel with Kowloon Tong, for a distance of approximately 4,000 feet. The rectangular block enclosed by it is 740 feet at its widest part, and is mostly hilly. The task of levelling or partly levelling something like five hills, filling up the intervening depressions with the material, and preparation of the site to a certain required gradient, will take some considerable time.

GOOD PROGRESS.

The contractors have been given three years, and are required to remove and dump something like 1,000 cubic yards of material per day, but they told a Telegraph representative that at the present rate of progress they expect to finish their job much earlier.

When the first section in the scheme has been completed, with all drainage requirements, an area a trifle smaller than the present Kowloon Tong, will be available for building purposes on the other side of Waterloo Road. (Continued from Page 1.)

It will have formed Greater Kowloon Tong.

CINEMA AND SHOPPING CENTRE.

While work is proceeding on the preparation of the section, the Government, on its side has drawn up plans for the laying out of the area. The new scheme will be treated in conjunction with the needs of the present settlement, and the undertakings of a public character being planned are in the expectation of the district being developed to its fullest possible extent. Thus, in the list of public amenities contemplated, is the extension of the present Public Park, the preparation of a new children's play ground, the construction of a Police Station, a new market, shops, a cinema theatre and other public buildings. The needs of the large community expected to take up residence in the district will be fully served, without impinging on its essentially suburban character.

OPIUM DIVAN RAIDS

SEVERAL KEEPERS IN COURT

Several keepers of opium divans were fined by Mr. Schofield, at the Central Magistracy this morning.

Revenue Officer Ward charged Tsang Shing with keeping a divan on the ground floor in Wing Fong Street. The accused was fined $100 or five weeks' hard labour.

The same officer charged Wong Ah-chuen with keeping a divan in Tang Lung Street. Accused was fined $125 or six weeks' hard labour.

Revenue Officer Grimmit charged Ng Hing with possession of two tins of prepared opium and with keeping a divan in Aberdeen Street.

The accused was fined $150 or seven weeks' hard labour for possession, and $50 or four weeks for the second charge, the sentences to run consecutively.

Lai Kwai-heung was fined $20 or ten days and $100 or five weeks' hard labour for possession of four tins of prepared opium, and keeping a divan in Wing Fong Street.

THE WRITING ON THE WALL

POLICE SUMMONS FAILS

Li Ying-ming, 20, a coolie at the Central Fire Station, charged with defacing the wall of the station, was discharged in the Central Magistracy this morning, by Mr. MacLaren who held that evidence of the use of a finger to retract part of a character was not sufficient to convict. The prosecution alleged he wrote anti-Japanese propaganda on the wall.

Hon. Mr. E. D. C. Wofe appeared for the prosecution, together with Det-Inspector Elston, while Mr. Horace Lo defended.

Defendant said he knew only about four of the written characters. He was about to wipe them off with his finger when he was caught.

Mr. Lo submitted that there might have been good reason to erase the characters immediately after the defendant's arrest but this had prejudiced the defence greatly. If the characters had been left on the wall the defendant could have been tested as to his knowledge of them. The case was as flimsy as could be.

DAY BY DAY NEWS IN BRIEF

THE WICKEDNESS OF THE FEW MAKE THE CALAMITY OF THE MANY.—Publius Syrus.

Cheung Hing, an apprentice, was injured yesterday in a fall from scaffolding outside the Hongkong Electric Co.'s premises in Des Voeux Road. He was sent to hospital.

Police are looking for an unknown driver, who drove off after his car had knocked down a Chinese pedestrian in Connaught Road after 11 o'clock last night. The victim was found by Traffic Sgt. MacInnes and removed to the Government Civil Hospital.

An order for the confiscation of opium discovered by Sub-Inspector Logan on the bench at Shek O was made by Mr. Schofield, at the Central Magistracy this morning. The Inspector stated that he went to the spot on information, and found sacks containing 18 tins of raw opium, which he later sent to the Imports

THE MAGISTRATE'S WATCH

USED AS ANALOGY IN COURT CASE

"You have got to be careful about these cases. You and I, for instance, would find it extremely difficult to actually prove where we bought any of the things we have in our possession. If you ask me where I bought this watch I cannot prove it. As a matter of fact I bought it in London three years ago." Thus remarked Mr. Wynne-Jones in Court this morning, when he dismissed a Chinese soldier who, coming from Amoy, was charged with the unlawful possession of a large quantity of salt fish, suspected of having been stolen.

Sub-Inspector Kirby said the defendant was arrested by a district watchman going up the stairs leading to an opium divan in Connaught Road Central. He had no money and had had the fish for six days. The Magistrate—All that he has got to do in answer to this charge is to provide a reasonable explanation. He has not got to prove it.

SUMMONS DROPPED

EUROPEAN MOTORISTS AND COURT CASE

Proceedings in the case in which Mrs. K. T. Loke, of Robinson Road, was summoned by Mr. G. Fowler, of the S.P.C.A., for failing to answer his signal whilst their cars were negotiating a bend in Kowloon Tong last month were concluded before Mr. Butters at the Kowloon Magistracy this morning when the summons was withdrawn.

Mrs. Loke was not in Court when the case was called, but Mr. Fowler said he understood that her husband was on the way. His Worship—I am sorry for this delay. I was away during the last two Fridays. Do you wish to go on with the summons, Mr. Fowler?

Mr. Fowler—I leave the matter entirely in your hands. His Worship—I don't mean that the summons should not have been taken out, but in view of the fact that defendant has had to come over so many times, the matter might be dropped. Mr. Fowler agreed.

Mr. Wynne-Jones, in the Central Police this morning, sent an unemployed Chinese to goal for six months, for the possession of fifty counterfeit Hongkong ten cent pieces.

One case each of small-pox, diphtheria and meningitis were reported to the local health authorities on Wednesday.

Charged with being in unlawful possession of 5,930 pa pin tickets at the Yau-mai Railway Station yesterday, a Chinese woman was fined $250 or three months before Mr. Butters at the Kowloon Magistracy.

A Chinese seen by Mr. Schofield smoking a cigarette in the Central Court and also wearing a hat, was charged and fined $1 for each offence. "Don't tell me a lie, I saw you!" remarked Mr. Schofield, when the man denied wearing his hat in Court.

Frederick Rumohr-Hughes, a wool broker, late of 2, Mount Street, Westminster, England, who died on December 7, 1932, left local estate worth over $16,000. Application for re-sealing the certified copy of probate of his will of deceased has been granted by the son, Alan Rumohr-Hughes, of 7, Riverside Road, Gran-

ASSISTANCE FOR MOTORISTS

H.K. Reciprocal Agreement With Malaya

The Reciprocal Agreement recently entered into by the Hong Kong Automobile Association and the Automobile Association of Malaya forms another link in the chain of Associations which work for the best conditions for motoring and provide assistance and facilities for motorists practically throughout the world. These agreements enable a member of one Association to make use of the benefits and assistance of an Allied Association with no trouble and little or no additional expense.

A motorist from Hong Kong visiting the Straits Settlements, Federated Malay States and the Unfederated Malay States, is now entitled for a period of one month without payment of subscription or fee to all the motoring and legal privileges enjoyed by the A. A. M. ordinary members. Should a longer stay be contemplated the same facilities are at his disposal for six months at and inclusive fee of $5.00 (Straits). On the other hand a motorist from Malaya who is a member of the A. A. M. may visit Hong Kong and enjoy the facilities provided by our organization on the same terms.

This Association has now become so international in character that the former difficulties of motoring have largely disappeared and the modern motorist sometimes fails to appreciate the enormous amount of work involved in order to provide him with the high class standards and comforts of motoring which he enjoys. All he needs to do is to take his letters of introduction from the local Hon. Secretary and he has at his disposal the ready and willing service of the motoring organization of the country he wishes to visit.

MORE DANGEROUS DRIVING

LORRY AND CAR DRIVERS FINED

Several drivers were summoned before Mr. Schofield, at the Central Magistracy this morning, with dangerous driving.

Lau Kan-choy, the driver of motor lorry No. 1389 was summoned for such an offence at Whitefield on May 3 at 11 a.m.

Traffic Sergeant Clark said he paced the lorry with another motor car and found that it was doing about 18 miles an hour.

The accused had an excellent record and a fine of $15 was imposed.

Luk Ting-cheung, the driver of private car No. 2056, was fined $25 for having driven in a dangerous manner in Queen's Road, East. He was stated to have cut in from behind another lorry, when Traffic Sergeant Fryer was coming in the opposite direction.

A fine of $20 was imposed on Lo Pui for having driven public car No. 638 at a dangerous speed along Queen's Road, East, near Spring Garden Lane.

Sergeant Clark said that the accused was going about 35 miles an hour, and at one stage touched 38 miles an hour.

ALLEGED ILLEGAL DETENTION

THREE MEN CHARGED THIS MORNING

Three Chinese coolies, Chan Fat, Li Fu-lam and Lo Yin, were produced before Mr. Schofield, at the Central Magistracy this morning, charged with illegally detaining Ng Shing-yung, a tallyman, at No. 16, Western Street, 2nd floor, on May 16.

Mr. Hin-shing Lo appeared for the three defendants on the instruction of Mr. J. M. Hall, and also for the first defendant's wife, whom Mr. Lo said had not been charged yet, as she had fainted in the No. 7, Police Station yesterday, and was sent to hospital.

Detective Sergeant O'Donovan said that the complainant owed the first defendant some money, and he was taken to the defendant's house on the morning of May 16th, to talk the matter over. Complainant was still on the premises at 8.30 p.m. when the police went to the place. He was apparently in a very frightened state, and did not even make an attempt to shout.

The hearing was fixed for Monday next. The three defendants

DECISION STILL AWAITED

AQUATIC ENTHUSIASM DEVELOPING AT Y.M.C.A.

ARGYLLS' CHALLENGE IN SHANGHAI

The Y.M.C.A. gave an indication of the strong challenge they are likely to make for the Water Polo League championship when last night they defeated the Tsung Sing club in a friendly game in the Y.M. bath.

Although Schreuder, their star goal scorer played between the sticks, and Kerr, customary defender went up forward, the Young Men were as a team much superior to the visitors.

The Chinese, however, are a newly formed club and have yet plenty of time to settle down. Kerr (37), Goldman (2) and Chatterton scored for the winners, Tsung Sing being unable to make any impression on the host's defence.

The teams were:
Y.M.C.A.:—Schreuder, Lange and Turner; R. Goldman; E. Ralton, W. Kerr and H. Chatterton.
Tsung Sing:—Tang Shui-fai; Lam Shui-so and Ip Shan-cheung; Poon Ping-man; Cheung Wai-kwong, Kong Cheuk-chai, and So Tin-mo.
Mr. E. F. Selk refereed the game.

C. B. C. GALA.

The "Y" are sending a team to the Chinese Bathing Club gala this week. It has not yet been definitely selected, but it is presumed that choice will be made from the following: W. Schreuder, A. Dunn, E. Ralton, J. Lange, R. Goldman, A. Chatterton. Prominent absentees will be B. Rasmussen and E. F. Selk, and their absence will somewhat weaken the team. Nevertheless it is obvious that the Y.M.C.A. will be powerfully represented and should easily hold their own against all comers.

The aquatic fever has fairly smitten the Y.M.C.A. and never before has so much enthusiasm been displayed. A series of water polo matches are now in the course of arrangement and they include meets with South China, University and Chinese Civil Service.

The match with South China will probably be staged on Wednesday next at 6 p.m.

WHAT WILL ARMY DO?

Association news is rather scarce, but a meeting of the Council is being held this evening several important items being listed on the agenda.

As entries for the Water Polo League do not close until Wednesday next, it is not yet possible to give the entrants. There is still some uncertainty as to the attitude of the Army Area Sports Board to the Swimming Association, and it is not yet known whether they will affiliate to the Association.

If only for the sake of the large number of swimmers affected it would be a pity if the Board decided to remain aloof from the Association, as the water polo league offers a regular series of games and the experience of meeting first class teams which are invaluable.

However, it is understood that whether or not the Sports Board do throw in their lot with the Association, they have given permission for Service members of affiliated clubs to play for the private clubs in the Association's programmes.

From Shanghai comes the news that the Argyls have entered no less than six teams in the Shanghai Water Polo League, which just shows how rich in talent is the Battalion.

SPORTS MEETING.

Indian R.C. Hold Annual Event.

A VARIED PROGRAMME.

A varied programme of events has been arranged for the third annual sports meeting of the Indian Recreation Club, which will be held on the Club's grounds at Sookunpo on Sunday afternoon.

The meeting is taking place later in the year than formerly, and the Sports Sub-Committee have wisely reduced the number of strenuous events. The Mile Race, which has always attracted a large number of entries, has been cut out on account of the warm weather, and several novel events have been put in. Children will be specially provided for in several races, which should prove popular with them.

There will be one race confined to members of the Indian Division of the St. John Ambulance Brigade, and another, the 100 yards championship, is open to visitors.

Miss J. el Arcull has kindly concluded the meeting.

K.C.C. TO SELECT LEAGUE TEAMS

TENNIS TOURNAMENT THIS WEEK END

All members of the Kowloon Cricket Club, interested in league tennis, and who desire to try to obtain a place in one of the three teams entered in the league by the Club this summer, are asked to attend the Club to take part in a selection contest, which will take the form of an American tournament during the week end. The tournament, from which it is decided definitely to select the league sides, will start tomorrow afternoon at 2.30, and will continue on Sunday afternoon. Every pair will meet each other on the league system of one set not to exceed twelve games.

To-morrow's Football Match

SERVICES VERSUS CHINESE

A team has been selected to represent the Chinese on Saturday next, May 20, against the Services, in the Charity match for the Hongkong Children's Playground Fund.

LAWN BOWLS PROGRAMME

100 Per Cent. Record Police and Kowloon B.G.C. to Meet

SEVERAL ATTRACTIVE GAMES TO-MORROW.

AFTER the first fortnight of the bowls season, ties in the two divisions become more and more interesting.

Thus to-morrow the big attraction is the meeting of the Kowloon Bowling Green Club and the Police, at present the only two undefeated teams in the senior division.

The game should provide a real test for both sides, and the outcome may have no small bearing on the championship in the later stages of the season.

In several quarters the Police, because of their away victories against the Craigengower and K.C.C., are favoured to gain their third success, whereas one cannot ignore the advantage which lies with the Kowloon club of being on their own green.

The Police are turning out their strongest combination for the third successive Saturday which bodes ill for their hosts. If there are many more than half a dozen shots separating the sides at the close of the 21st head, it will be surprising.

C.C.C. AT FULL STRENGTH.

The Craigengower, who tasted the fruits of victory for the first time in the season last week, will entertain their Valley neighbours, the Civil Service. The champions will enjoy the services of D. Rumball and E. el Arcull, and should, in spite of the difficulty being experienced in "finding" the green since its alterations last winter, win a keen contest.

The visit of the champions to the Yacht Club, 1932 runners-up, provides the tit-bit in the second division programme. Craigengower will have to display a big improvement on last week's showing if they are to rob the Yachtsmen of their 100 per cent. record. Frankly I think the task will be beyond them, as there is a definite lack of balance in the team at the moment with Field's rink being the only to show anything like consistently good form.

Civil Service and the Kowloon Bowling Green Club, with identical league records, will clash at the Happy Valley, and this will provide the Peninsula team with a real test. They overwhelmed the Police last week on foreign soil, and there is no gainsaying the fact that the three rinks are playing first class bowls, fully capable of upsetting the best of teams whether they be at home or away.

There appear to be no material team changes for any of the games to-morrow, so that form alone will decide the issues.

These are some of the selected sides:

GOLF TITLE TO MISS WILSON

London, May 18. Miss Enid Wilson established a post-war record for the English Ladies Open Golf Championship to-day, when she won the title for the third year in succession.

Miss Wilson, who is from Nottingham, defeated Miss Diana Plumpton, of Frinton, in the final over 36 holes by five up and four to play.

scope for a million laughs. Nunoi disposed of Rogers in three sets, and although the first and third went to twelve games each, the young Japanese won the second with comparative ease, conceding three games.

Rogers is regarded as one of the most natural and finest players in Europe to-day. During the last twelve months he has enjoyed a series of outstanding successes, and Nunoi's achievement is such to indicate that Japan will have a big say in the European zone of the Davis Cup competition this summer.

Jiro Satoh beat McGuire with ease and Japan thus took a useful lead of two matches to love on the first day. Nunoi is almost certain to beat McGuire, so that Japan's entry into the third round is practically assured.

U. S. STILL WINNING.

America went a long way to winning the North American Zone final to-day at Montreal, when Ellsworth Vines and Allison won their opening singles, against Canada.

Wright, the Canadian No. 1 failed to take a set from Allison, while Vines just toyed with Nunna to win with the loss of seven games.

The scores as cabled by Reuter were:

EUROPEAN ZONE SECOND ROUND.

Japan lead Ireland at Dublin by two matches to love: Nunoi (Japan) beat Lyttleton Rogers 7-5, 6-3, 7-5; Jiro Satoh (Japan) beat McGuire 6-2, 6-2, 6-2.

NORTH AMERICAN ZONE FINAL

America lead Canada at Montreal by two matches to love. W. Allison (America) beat Wright 6-2, 7-5, 6-2; Ellsworth Vines (America) beat Nunna 6-3, 6-1, 6-3.

CINEMA SCREENINGS.

NOTES SUPPLIED BY THE THEATRES

Clara Bow, most emotional of screen stars, has never been pictured in an entirely emotional role. Many times, married in her screen characterizations, she has never been shown as a mother.

Yet in "Call Her Savage," her initial Fox picture now playing at the King's Theatre, she discards the flapperisms that made for famous, portrays a tenacious dramatic role and depicts the rich emotionalism of mother love.

"Call Her Savage" was adapted by Edwin Burke from Tiffany Thayer's much-discussed novel, and was directed by John Francis Dillon.

An Unlucky Night—The drama that sometimes goes on back of the quiet facade of commonplace suburban homes provides the basis for "The Night of June 13," the new film now showing at the Queen's Theatre. It deals with four families whose lives and fates have become rather intricately tangled and it tells a story that is as exciting in its nearness to everyday existence as in its melodrama.

"Jack's The Boy"—Jack Hulbert is now definitely placed in the front rank of the world's comedians. His subtle sense of clowning, his fascinating, rhythmic dancing and jolly method of "putting over" a musical number are artistic achievements essentially his own.

When he is partnered by Cicely Courtneidge (his wife) there are no limits to their exquisite foolery. They are perfectly matched in "Jack's The Boy," the new Gainsborough comedy to be shown at the King's Theatre next Sunday, and have abundant scope for their brilliant drolleries.

Jack Hulbert as a tyro policeman gives a wonderful performance—excellent when mixed up with traffic or crooks, and fascinating when making love and crooning a romantic song followed by some marvellous dancing. Cicely Courtneidge is great as the proprietress of a pseudo-Scottish cafe, with her delicious Cockney-Scotch accent. Altogether "Jack's The Boy" is the kind of entertainment that can be seen and heartily enjoyed by everyone.

"Red Dust"—One of the most anticipated productions of the new season comes to the Queen's Theatre on Sunday with the co-starring appearance of Clark Gable and Jean Harlow in "Red Dust."

The locale is Cochin-China, with Gable playing a hardened plantation foreman who has forced himself to become completely brutalized in an effort to remain superior to his environment of fever, tropical heat and treacherous natives.

To Miss Harlow falls the role of Vantine, born to the tropics, hard-boiled, perfectly at home on the plantation and equal in strength and animal pugnacity to the men. It is when the beautiful wife of an engineer comes to the plantation and is involved in a love affair with Gable that the jealous and fiery nature of this savage-like creature asserts itself and brings the action of the plot to a dramatically compromising situation.

Nanking, May 18.
Admiral Chen Shao-kuan, Minister of Navy, told press representatives to-day that the French Authorities have not only ignored the Chinese protest regarding the sale of the Chinese naval hospital in the French Concession in Tientsin, but a greater part of the building has already been pulled down.

Admiral Chen reiterated that the sale by Marshal Chang Haueh-liang was illegal and that the Government would continue protesting to the French Authorities.—Reuter.

BIG SCORES

BROOKLYN TALLY
FOURTEEN

GIANTS WIN AND LOSE

Washington, May 18.
Beyond the blanketing out of Boston and Chicago in the National League, baseball fans to-day saw a lot of high scoring.

Brooklyn ran up a tally of 14
against St. Louis, and Chicago,
after being blanked out in their first game of a double header with
the Giants, rattled up ten runs in the following encounter.

Philadelphia helped themselves
to nine against Chicago in the American League, and Cleveland nosed out Washington in the tenth innings.

Reuter's scores are:

NATIONAL LEAGUE.

	R.	H.	E.
Cincinnati	1	6	0
Boston	0	1	0

London Passenger Traffic Pool

LORD ASHFIELD AS CONTROLLER

London, May 18.
It was to-night announced in the Commons that Lord Ashfield the Chairman of the London Traffic Combine, will be appointed first Chairman of the London Passenger Transport Board.

The appointment is for seven years. Mr. Frank Pick, present managing Director of the Underground Group, will be a whole time member for seven years.
Mr. John Clift, at present
Assistant General Secretary of the Transport and General
Workers' Union, and Colonel
Patrick Ashley-Cooper, Director of the Bank of England and of the Hudson Bay Company, part time members for five years.
Sir John Gilbert, Alderman of the London County Council, Sir
Edward Holland, Alderman of the Surrey County Council and Sir Henry Maybury, the Chairman of the London Home Counties Traffic Committee are to be part time members for three years.

The new pooling scheme includes every form of passenger transport within an area of about 25 miles from Charing Cross and represents approximately £120 millions of invested capital.—British Wireless.
